1000 Hunt Pair Vainly In Maryland Car Mystery

Find No Trace Of Man and Girl Who Vanished From Bloodied Auto

More than 1000 searchers, aided by planes and walkie-talkie radio equipment, yesterday scanned the woods and farmlands in the vicinity of Glen Burnie, Md., in an unsuccessful effort to locate a young Glen Burnie pair, missing since Friday.

The two, John H. Mahlan, 25, and Mary C. Kline, 18, were last seen at 8:45 p. m. Friday as they drove from the Kline residence.

Mahlan's car was discovered early Saturday abandoned in a sandy patch off Old Annapolis rd., about two miles from Glen Burnie. The interior of the vehicle was spattered with blood and two .38 caliber bullets had been fired into the car from the outside. One bullet was found in the car.

Blood Being Tested

Glen Burnie Police Chief John H. Souers yesterday denied an earlier report that he had said evidence pointed to the slaying of one or both of the young people.

"We don't even know if that is human blood in the car," he declared, explaining that samples had been sent to Baltimore police headquarters for chemical tests. A report on the findings is expected today, he stated.

The widespread search yesterday uncovered only one additional detail—the finding of Mahlan's automobile keys a few feet from the vehicle.

Value of the keys as a clew was nullified, Souers pointed out, by Saturday's rainfall which undoubtedly, he said, washed away any fingerprints.

Mahlan's torn driving permit was discovered Saturday by one of a searching party of 300, about 200 yards from the auto.

Detailed examination of the machine by homicide experts revealed one bullet had shattered the right front window and another entered the left front window.

Girl's Shoe Found

On the rear floor was one of Miss Kline's shoes. A pool of blood was on the flooring. Although some pine needles were found in the car, there was no pine growth near where the car was found.

One theory was that the slayer disposed of the body or bodies and then drove to the spot where the car was found.

Summoned by the tolling of bells at the Glen Burnie Methodist Church, hundreds of residents gathered there at 6:30 a. m. yesterday to begin the hunt.

They were transported to the searching areas by truck and private car. Red Cross workers accompanied the searchers supplying sandwiches and hot coffee as hour on hour, men, women and children scoured the woodlands.

The little community of Glen Burnie was virtually deserted as residents flocked to aid in the hunt.

Assistance Rushed To British Vessel On Caribbean Reef

(Map on Page 8)

Miami, Fla. Sept. 19 (AP).—Assistance was speeding through stormy seas tonight to the British steamship Lochmonar which reported herself breaking up on a reef in a hurricane in the Caribbean Sea.

The 9000-ton vessel with 73 persons on board was hard aground and requested "immediate assistance." About 100 miles away winds of 115 miles an hour whirled around the center of a growing storm, with heavy gales buffeting Little Cayman Island where the Lochmonar was grounded.

A Navy surface craft sped from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, to the scene. A rescue tug, the Curb, plowed toward the ship from Kingston, Jamaica.

"We're In Bad Shape"

"We're in bad shape," the Lochmonar radioed Coast Guard headquarters here. "Fear we are breaking up. Need immediate assistance."

The Navy craft, big and powerful, should reach the stricked vessel tonight. The tug is expected to arrive Monday morning.

The hurricane which drove the ship aground gained swiftly in force today, its whirling winds increasing from 85 miles an hour to 115 miles velocity. Hurricane hunters of the Navy and Air Force began a 24-hour watch, putting radar aircraft into the air at night.

The Lochmonar struck a reef 500 yards offshore from Little Cayman Island in the early morning. Her bow was driven hard on the reef. A hole punched through her hull and the forepeak quickly flooded.

Storm Moving Slowly

Sixty-seven of those on board were crewmen and six were passengers. The ship was sailing for Cienfuegos, Cuba, from Cristobal, Canal Zone.

Storm forecasters said the hurricane was moving west-northwestward but so slowly it could change direction at any time.

At Key West, Fla., the Navy flew a number of planes northward and alerted all ships' crews to be prepared to sail on one hour's notice.

Northeast storm warnings were flying from Miami through Key West.

Typhoon Hits Rice Crop

District Lookout Flashed

Seven Bandits Get $2500 In Holdup of Va. Beach Club

Seven masked bandits, armed with rifles and a submachine gun, staged a daring predawn raid in a swank Virginia Beach (Va.) club yesterday and made off with cash and jewelry estimated at $2500.

By last night, the State-wide search for the men had extended to Washington, where a lookout for three of the men, believed to be "armed and dangerous" was flashed at about 6:15 p. m. Earlier local, county and Virginia State police had tried to trap the bandits with roadblocks.

The men, believed to be in their middle twenties, wore Army fatigue clothes and brandished Army Garand rifles and a submachine gun when they invaded the fashionable Boat House just outside Virginia Beach city limits between 3 and 4 a. m. (EST) yesterday.

About 40 surprised stag-party guests obeyed their curt and quick demands.

While three of the men stayed outside the clubhouse and slashed tires of the guests' automobiles, four entered the building. Two jumped on a table, ordered members of the party to line up against

Parking Lot Shuttle Buses Start Today

Beginning at 9:15 a. m. today, shuttle buses will depart from two 400-car fringe parking lots every 10 minutes for the shopping district to relieve downtown Washington's parking shortage.

Should this first attempt at combined fringe lots and shuttle bus service prove successful, the program can be extended to surround the city, P. Y. K. Howat, head of the D. C. Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, said yesterday.

"If the people take to this," he said, "I can surround Washington with 10,000 parking spaces, and I'm not saying that lightly."

One lot opening today, known as the Heurich-Kass lot, is located near the Christian Heurich Brewery at 26th and E sts. nw. and is easily accessible from Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway.

The other is located near the Municipal Center, in the block bounded by John Marshall pl., C st., 3d st., and Constitution ave. nw.

Slate of Truman Electors Named In Mississippi

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 19 (AP).—A Mississippi slate of presidential electors pledged to President Truman was announced today.

A slate nominated by Mississippi's Democratic Party is pledged to vote for J. Strom Thurmond, presidential candidate of the States' Rights Democrats.

Phillip E. Mullin, of the Truman group, said:

"Without the qualifications of this slate of electors, all citizens in Mississippi would have been disenfranchised for they would have had no choice, their votes would have been cast for them by less than a half dozen people from each county who took part in the State (Democratic) Convention."

Israel Acts To Outlaw Terrorists

Tel Aviv, Israel, Sept. 19 (AP).—Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok told the acting United Nations mediator tonight Israel has "adopted special emergency regulations giving it sweeping powers to take action against terrorist organizations, their members and accomplices."

Informed sources said the laws are strong enough to include Irgun Zvai Leumi as well as the Stern Gang, which Israel accuses of the assassination Friday of Count Folke Bernadotte.

His successor, Ralph J. Bunche, heard from Shertok that 150 members of the Stern group have been arrested in Jerusalem and more than 50 seized in Tel Aviv and elsewhere.

(Jerusalem dispatches said 200 Sternists were arrested there and taken to Haifa for dispersal in the Israeli army.)

Shertok told Bunche "vigorous investigations are proceeding to probe deeper into the mystery of the crime and discover the real culprits."

The Foreign Minister said suspects will be paraded before eyewitnesses of the assassination soon. Lieut. Col. Andre Pierre Serot of France, Bernadotte's senior aide in Jerusalem, was killed with him.

On 'Victory Special'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Aboard Dewey Campaign Train, Sept. 19.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's self-named Victory Special followed President Truman into the Midwest tonight on the first lap of a 13-State, 8000-mile transcontinental circuit.

Monday in Rock Island, Ill., at 12:30 p. m., he will strike his first blow and at 8 Monday night in Drake University Stadium, Des Moines, Iowa, he will formally open his campaign, in a speech radically different from Mr. Truman's smashing attack.

Campaign gear and trappings sought to build around the GOP nominee an aura of "the champ." Large orange press badges issued to the reporters, emblazoned these words, "Dewey Victory Special." Luggage tags were similarly stamped.

Policy Unchanged

Even Mr. Truman's "gluttons of privilege" speech in Dexter, Iowa, last night won't deflect Governor Dewey from a "general-in-character" first prepared speech. The strategy of largely ignoring Mr. Truman still holds.

So goes Dewey's strenuous schedule. The first detailed itinerary released today disclosed no fewer than 34 stops for rear platform speeches on this first Western swing, in addition to major appearances.

They fairly dot the States in which Senate seats are at stake. At some of the secondary stops, as in Rock Island, Ill., Monday, he will leave the rear platform to mix with the people and speak from some central spot.

Points for Senate Win

Both of Monday's engagements point up his intense concentration on returning a Republican-controlled Senate, in most cases regardless of the stamp of the Senate GOP nominee.

In Illinois, Senator C. Wayland Brooks, Old Guard Republican of the Chicago Tribune school, is running for re-election against a liberal Democrat, World War II veteran Paul Douglas.

And in Iowa, Senator George Wilson, who often votes with the Republican liberal wing, is defending his seat against former Senator and middle-of-the road Democrat Guy M. Gillette.

Senator Brooks, and a delegation of 13 Illinois Republican leaders led by Gov. Dwight Green, running for a third term will board the train at Englewood, Ill., and ride with the Governor Dewey party to Rock Island.

Open-Air Rally Set

There, Mayor Melvin L. McKay will head a welcoming delegation. Governor Dewey will leave the train and walk with them to Spencer Park for an open-air rally. An hour later the train will head west for Iowa.

The senatorial vanguard technique will be repeated in that State. Senator Wilson and a 15-man State Republican delegation

Marshall Off to U. N.; Says World Situation Is 'Unusually Critical'

Queuille's Budget Voted

French Economy Plan Wins, May Free $260 Million in U. S.

Paris, Sept. 19 (AP).—The National Assembly approved today the program of Premier Henry Queuille for increased taxes and government economy.

It was an indorsement that his two predecessors, Robert Schuman and Andre Marie, lost their jobs trying to get.

The program, indorsed after an all-night session, will become law after approval by the Council of the Republic—the upper house in the Parliament. No serious difficulties were foreseen there.

The new laws will put France in a position to ask permission of the United States to use a blocked fund of about 80 billion francs (about 260 million dollars) for reconstruction.

This represents the franc equivalent of American grants to France, under the European Recovery Program.

The new taxes are on income, business volume, automobiles, tobacco and other items. They are expected to bring in another 80 billion francs in annual revenue.

Queuille also plans to save 20 billion francs (about 65 million dollars) a year by cutting the number of government employes.

His plan to "save the franc" did not satisfy the followers of Gen.

Reds Say They Will Quit Korea By January 1

Express Hope U. S. Will Follow Suit In Southern Portion

Moscow, Sept. 19 (AP).—Russia said tonight all Soviet troops would be evacuated from northern Korea by January 1, 1949, and expressed hope the United States would follow suit in southern Korea.

The announcement was made in a decree of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament).

American diplomatic circles expressed surprise at the Soviet move. Informants said they did not expect the Russians to withdraw from northern Korea until the Americans evacuated southern Korea.

When the Russians proposed a year ago to withdraw their armies from Korea if the Americans did likewise, observers in the United States Embassy here interpreted it as "primarily a propaganda maneuver."

They admitted surprise that the withdrawal order was issued regardless whether the American troops remain in southern Korea. They said this latest Soviet move creates an entirely new situation in Korea.

(A Moscow broadcast heard in London said withdrawal of Soviet troops would begin "not later than the second half of October" and will be completed by January 1, 1949.)

By the United Press

The United States will not withdraw its troops from southern Korea while the fate of the embattled Pacific nation is being considered by the United Nations.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall told a recent news conference that the question of troop withdrawal could not be decided either way before the forthcoming U. N. General Assembly meeting in Paris.

Reds Capture City on Java, Set Up Regime

Move Seen Opening of Moscow-Aided Drive; Martial Law Decreed

Batavia, Java, Sept. 19 (AP).—Communists have overthrown the government in the Indonesian city of Madioen and set up "a Soviet" regime, President Soekarno announced today.

The President proclaimed martial law for all workers in vital industries throughout the Indonesian Republic and warned that "this seizure of power by the Communists may be regarded as the start for seizing the whole republic."

Soekarno said the republic was in grave danger and called for the recapture of Madioen.

Speaking over the Jogjakarta Radio, the President said "Musso (Moscow-trained Communist) and his Communist Party staged a coup, seized power in Madioen and established there a Soviet government under his leadership."

He said the insurgents were aided by a brigade of the republican army and a unit of the peoples army (Laskar).

The Ministry of Information said the coup probably was Moscow-inspired.

The provincial administration ordered a curfew, announced severe penalties against looting, and required all persons to carry identification papers.

Political observers here have feared for some weeks that the Communists might move to seize the government.

The city of Madioen, seat of the provincial government, is the third largest republican city on the island of Java. It lies just east of the capital of Jogjakarta and Soerakarta, the largest cities.

The Indonesian Communists recently came into the open when former Premier Amir Sjarifoeddin's Socialists and former vice Premier Setiadjit's Labor Party merged with them. The Communists already have stirred up serious incidents in Soerakarta and there have been strikes—apparently Communist inspired—in Madioen.

Johnston-Soviet Film Deal Seen

Moscow, Sept. 19 (AP).—Eric Johnston said tonight he appeared to have reached an agreement with Russia on the sale of U. S. movies here.

Details will be worked out in the United States, Johnston emphasized the Soviet Union has not assumed there would be assistance toward the sale of Russian pictures in the U. S. He said also that the pictures the Russians buy will be from a list "we submit to them."

Robbed, Lectured By Greek Bandits, Americans Say

Athens, Sept. 19 (AP).—Two American contractors said today they were robbed of $3000 in cash and valuables Friday night by guerillas who lectured them about capitalism and politics in the United States.

Wilfred L. Painter, former Navy captain of Seattle, Wash., and Robert P. Bayard of Long Island, said they were stopped on a lonely mountain road by "five guerillas in soldiers' uniforms."

Bayard said they took $1680. When he protested, they told him to get more from President Truman, who "has sent plenty to Greece." One added:

"Truman no good. Wallace good. We vote Wallace.'

Husband Denies Charge

U. S. Army Sergeant's Wife Claims Russians Banned Mail

Moscow, Sept. 19 (AP).—A letter published in Izvestia today, signed by Mrs. Antonina Tarasova Phillips, wife of a United States Army sergeant, formerly stationed in Moscow, said her husband "had been forbidden to write to her because she was a Soviet citizen."

Mrs. Phillips said she was told this by friends here of her husband, William V. Phillips, 28, of Pen Argyl, near Easton, Pa.

Moscow newspapers carried a notice July 6 to the effect Mrs. Phillips had filed suit to divorce her husband.

In the letter Mrs. Phillips asserted her husband was sent home as a result of his marriage to her because she is a Soviet citizen.

[Phillips, an Air Force technical sergeant, has been stationed in Washington, D. C., since August 26, 1947, according to Air Force records. He is now attached to the 1131st Special Activities Squadron in the Pentagon and lives at Bolling Air Force Base.

["No one has forbidden me to write to my wife in Moscow," Sergeant Phillips told The Washington Post by telephone last night from the home of his parents in Pen Argyl, near Easton, Pa., where he is spending a weekend leave until Monday night.

["I know of no ban or censorship on mail from the United States to Russia. How do I know that the Russians aren't putting words in her mouth for some purpose of their own?

["I have not written to her since last spring, when I wrote asking what she thought about getting a divorce.

["If she has started divorce proceedings, that's all right. What can anybody here do about it? Perhaps that's for the best. But I don't want to discuss my personal affairs in the newspapers. That's all I have to say."

[Friends here said Phillips had made every effort to get his wife out of Russia when he returned here in May, 1947, but, like all Russian women married to American, British and other nationals, she was denied permission to leave Russia.

[They met when he was an Army personnel clerk on duty in Russia during the war. He returned to duty in Moscow in July, 1946, and they were married five months later, in violation of an Army rule against men marrying abroad without permission of their commanding officers.

[He was sent home when the secret of their marriage leaked out. He later reenlisted in the Air Force, hoping to be sent back to Moscow or to get permission for his wife to come to the United States. Failing in every attempt, he finally wrote his wife asking what she thought about getting a

No Sign of Break In Berlin Crisis; Secretary Leaves In Somber Mood

Molotov Won't Attend

MOLOTOV will not attend General Assembly meeting, thus ruling out Big Four Foreign Ministers session in Paris, at least for time being. Story on Page 3.

Flying to Paris

By Ferdinand Kühn, jr.
Post Reporter

Secretary Marshall was in a somber mood yesterday when he left Washington for the United Nations General Assembly in Paris.

He told reporters at National Airport he was leaving "at a time of an unusually critical world situation."

"It is a situation that will require a great deal of wisdom," he said. "I hope the discussions in Paris will bring us toward a more peaceful world, but hope alone is not enough.

"Speaking for the United States delegation, we will do our best within the interests of this country to secure the agreements which the interests of the world require."

The Secretary left with no sign of a break one way or the other in the long-drawn-out crisis with the Soviet Union over Berlin.

Before going to the airport he spent three hours at his desk in the State Department, studying and discussing Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith's report of the three Western ambassadors' latest talk—their eleventh—with Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow.

The impression given in informed quarters yesterday was that the talk with Molotov was inconclusive. The Soviet Foreign Minister had not yet agreed to send a new directive to Marshal Vassili Sokolovsky, his commander in Berlin, which would make possible an agreement on currency and the lifting of the Soviet blockade.

When the three ambassadors saw Premier Stalin last month he agreed to send Sokolovsky a directive that would have made a settlement possible. The three Western governments now contend that Sokolovsky disregarded the first directive from Moscow, and insist that another be sent him embodying the terms on which they thought they had obtained Stalin's approval.

United States' Position

If Molotov refuses to send a new directive, the United States Government has favored (1) breaking off the negotiations, (2) publishing the full record of the negotiations and, (3) placing the Berlin blockade before the U. N. Security Council as a threat to the peace.

The British and French governments, however, have urged moderation and more patience before abandoning all efforts to reach a settlement. Their position has

Technicalities Stall Moscow Berlin Talks

Moscow, Sept. 19 (AP).—Four-power talks here on the Berlin crisis were reported stalled today over technicalities and provisos insisted upon by the western governments.

It was indicted that last night's meeting of the three western envoys and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov may have been the last in the preesnt negotiations.

Full reports are in the hands of the western governments, and any next move will be up to them.

One possibility is that the delicate issues could be shifted to a Council of Foreign Ministers meeting, perhaps in conjunction with the United Nations Assembly in Paris. The fact that Molotov is not attending the U. N. meeting indicated to some observers that he was holding himself ready for talks, perhaps in Berlin.

It was reported here that the four powers were not far from general agreement when they bogged down.

The Russians were said to feel that they made concrete proposals to settle the issues but the western insistence on technicalities hampered an accord.

Two of Last 36 Whooping Cranes Found in Canada

Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Sept. 19 (AP).—Ornithologists reported today the discovery of two whooping cranes—near-extinct birds—whose nesting places have been sought by the United States and Canadian governments for years. The birds were photographed on marshes at Rice Lake, 30 miles north of here.

There are an estimated 36 whoopers remaining of the millions once extant. The United States and Canada seek to discover their Northern nesting grounds to determine their breeding habits and enable the birds to make a comeback.

The large white cranes have red markings on their crowns and black wing tips.

5000 District Householders Receive Increased Tax Bills

More than 5000 District householders have received increased personal property tax bills this year.

The increases were ordered by the District assessor's office, which compared returns filed by home owners with a schedule showing the average value of household effects reported by home owners in each home-price category.

In some cases where the amount of personal property acknowledged in the sworn return is materially below the average in the schedule, the amount of tax assessment is increased to accord with the schedule.

According to James L. Martin, head of the personal property tax division, principal offenders have been persons living in homes assessed in the $25,000 to $40,000 bracket.

Martin said the division was primarily interested in "the big houses," since the tax yields are largest there. Most homeowners are filing "adequate" returns, he said.

The tax, $2 per $100 valuation, is payable in two installments, by September 30 and by March 30. The first $1000 of personal property is generally exempt from the tax. Household effects, refrigerators, radios, etc., are considered personal property.

"Most of the increase in personal property taxes this year," said Martin, "were made to bring assessments up to the average as set forth in this schedule. Tax

'The Saint' to Combat Crime In New Post Comic Strip

"The Saint," otherwise Simon Templar, hero of 27 different whodunnit novels by Leslie Charteris, will start unraveling crime mysteries in a new comic strip in The Washington Post, Monday, September 27.

The newspaper version of "The Saint" will remain faithful to the character created in novels, motion pictures, short stories and radio programs. He will deal in mystery, adventure, romance and excitement, exposing the corrupt, the wicked and the evil in ways that do not always please the police but by methods that lead the wrongdoers to justice.

It's a formula that Leslie Charteris has made the foundation for a phenomenal success as a fiction writer. Charteris' career has furnished him plenty of background material for his fanciful tales. He was born in Singapore, taught to speak Chinese and Malayan before he learned English. He circled the world three times before he was 12. He started his writing career after a year at Cambridge. Before he became a successful writer, he tried working for rubber plantations, tin mines, wood distillation plants, pearl fisheries, gold mines in the Malayan jungle and even taught bridge in London.

Once he invented Simon Templar, "The Saint," however, his writing success was assured. His good-humored, fast-moving and romantic character proved the right combination of amusement and mystery to win millions of readers.

Former Buchenwald Prisoner Now Here Recalls Ilse Koch Amid Horrors of Camp

To the thousands who survived agonizing death in the Buchenwald concentration camp, red-headed Ilse Koch, wife of the commandant, is the symbol of Nazi horror.

Ilse, whose life sentence has been commuted to four years' imprisonment by the American occupation army command, is now 42 and hard. But she was a beauty in those war days when she reigned as the first lady of Buchenwald.

ILSE KOCH
. . . Sentence Reduced

Yes, Isle was a Titian beauty, and to the men who suffered through the living-death of the camp, Frau Koch was the incarnation of Satan.

Prisoner's Memories

"Nothing was human about Isle Koch except her lampshades made from the tatooed skin of the camp inmates," vividly remembers Prisoner No. 7993—Jakob Eisner, 52, now living here.

No. 7993 still sees Ilse Koch reviewing the special parade of prisoners—"at two or three o'clock in the morning, just returning drunk with the camp officials from their parties in Weimar."

She was the "guest of honor" that bitterly cold winter's night when a prisoner was hanged and 25,555 inmates were ordered up to attend the event. ("Strange how figures remain in the mind after so many years,' comments No. 7993.)

Buchenwald means "beech forest," and so it is, lying outside Weimar. It was in these woods Goethe often strolled, and here he wrote "Over All Trees Is Peace." A marble plaque markes the very tree under which he composed the lines. This tree served, under the Buchenwald terror, as a whipping post from which prisoners were suspended by their wrists.

In the Nuernberg trials, at which 22 Buchenwald officials were condemned to death, Ilse pleaded innocent. She said she knew nothing of the camps cruelties, tortures, and deaths.

It's been estimated that 53,000 Nazi political prisoners, Jews and "Aryans" alike, were killed or cremated in Buchenwald. Twenty thousand prisoners were in various stages of dying when freed by Patton's army. Bodies of the dead were piled up like cordwood. But Ilse insisted she knew nothing of this.

"Before my fingers were crippled," No. 7993 grimly recalls, "I worked to carve a riding row in the middle of the stone forest so that Isle Koch could enjoy riding. We also built her a zoo."

But most of all, Kommandant and Frau Koch were music lovers. On parade, the wretched, starved prisoners were forced to sing for their pleasure. The Kochs liked best "Doerflein" ("Little Village"), a sentimental song about an old woman's lost love. They liked, too, "Lore," "Sauerland," and "Hazel-Nut."

Captives Made to Sing

But the sounds from 10,000 parched voices—and thousands of broken souls were not melodious enough for the esthetic tastes of the commander and his wife. So the prisoners, after a day at hard labor and before being permitted to eat their miserable evening meal, were forced to practice harmony.

In 1945 the British Parliament sent a delegation to visit newly freed Buchenwald. The delegates reported:

"We were told Frau Koch collected articles made of human skin. We obtained pieces of hide which have since been identified . . . as being human skin. One of these pieces clearly formed part of a lampshade."

The delegation concluded that "a policy of steady starvation and inhuman brutality was carried out at Buchenwald for a long period, and that such camps as this mark the lowest point in degradation to which humanity has yet descended. The memory of what we saw and heard at Buchenwald will haunt us in effaceably for many years," the report said.

But Ilse Koch, queen of all she surveyed within the electrified barbed-wire fence of Buchenwald—according to her own testimony before the Nuernberg trial court—saw no evil, heard no evil, spoke no evil.

Yugoslav Aides In Warsaw Ask Ousting of Tito

Warsaw, Poland, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Five pro-Cominform members of the Yugoslav Embassy here called on Yugoslav Communists today to throw out Marshall Tito and his leaders.

"We call upon members of the Yugoslav Communist Party to root out nationalism in our party and remove the present leadership which does not wish to repair its mistakes and pushes the party and the nation to the precipice," their statement said.

The declaration was signed by Radomir Saranovic, first secretary, who is out of town, and four other members of the embassy who refused to comment.

"The murder committed by Tito police of the hero in the fight for freedom, Gen. Arsu Jovanovic (shot while trying to flee to Romania), mass arrests of members of the party faithful to Marxist-Leninism, removal from their posts of meritorious Communists, the strangling of each expression of international thought, the general atmosphere of terror—all this is evidence of the increasing decomposition of the politiacl regime and the fear of the same elements of the party and the nation," the statement said.

In the letter published today, Mrs. Phillips was quoted as saying she would like to have Izvestia publish the facts concerning herself in order once more to show the crude faalsification of "American propaganda."

The letter said she registered her marriage with Phillips at the end of 1946 and that Phillips asked her to keep it quiet because the embassy would send him home if the news became public. That, the letter went on, was just what happened.

"When I married Phillips," the letter went on, "I intended to go to America with the intention of returning later to my family living in Moscow. But after my husband ceased to write I naturally discarded this thought and at the present have begun a divorce suit."

Social Democrats Maintain Lead In Swedish Vote

Stockholm (Monday), Sept. 20 (AP).—The Social Democrats (Socialists) won 112 of the 230 seats in the lower house of Sweden's Parliament Sunday, maintaining their position as the nation's leading party.

Preliminary final returns showed today the Liberal Party had captured 57 seats, a gain of 31, and emerged as a strong opposition to the Socialists who have been in power 16 years.

The Socialists lost three seats. This took from them absolute control of Parliament in which they had held precisely half the positions.

The heaviest loser was the Conservative Party which plummeted from 39 to 22 seats, a loss of 17.

Communists droppel 6 and held 9 of their 15 places.

The Agrarians won 30 seats compared to 35 they gained in the last election in 1944.

De Gaulle Kin To Visit Here

Pierre De Gaulle, 52-year-old younger brother of Gen. Charles De Gaulle and president of the Paris municipal council, is scheduled to arrive in Washington this morning for a two-day "unofficial" visit.

The younger De Gaulle has been visiting in America as a guest of honor at New York City's Golden Jubilee ceremonies. He leaves Washington on Tuesday and will sail shortly for France from New York.

Ailing King Gustaf's Condition 'Satisfying'

Stockholm, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—King Gustaf V of Sweden, 90, is suffering from "difficulty in breathing" and general tiredness and has been examined by two specialists, a palace bulletin said today.

The announcement said the two specialists observed "more acute bronchial catarrh and difficulty in breathing." They reported that the King's "general condition, however, is satisfying."

U. S. Policy in Japan Irks Philippines, Report Says

By The Associated Press

United States policy in Japan is putting a strain on United States-Philippine relations, a report published jointly by the Foreign Policy Association and the American Institute of Pacific Relations said yesterday.

The author, Lawrence K. Rosinger said cleavage is developing between Washington and Manila over the United States' desire to allow Japan industrial capacity to help in its reconstruction. Philippine-United States foreign policy "in most other respects is virtually indistinguishable . . ." the report said.

Rosinger, formerly Far Eastern research associate for the Foreign Policy Association, is research associate for the institute of Pacific relations and editor of the annual survey of America and the Far East. All are private agencies.

The Philippines, says the report, sees in United States policy in Japan a possible hindrance to Philippine industrialization. Many Filipinos, Rosinger continues, resent the terms of the Philippine-United States trade relation law of 1946 (Bell act), contending it limits Filipino sovereignty.

The act determined trade relations between the two countries for 28 years from time of enactment, including quota limitations on several Philippine products exported to the United States.

Other agreements between the two countries provided for United States military bases in the islands.

"Although it would be unwise to predict," Rosinger states, "it is important for Americans to realize that the spirit of resentment may grow, especially if the Philippine economic situation at some point takes a turn for the worse."

Bomb of Assassin Takes Life Of U Tin Tut, Burmese Leader

Rangoon, Burma, Sept. 19 (AP).—Burma's efforts to smash a Communist-led rebellion suffered a new blow today with the death by assassination of Brig. U Tin Tut.

Official sources acknowledged a state of emergency existed throughout the strife-torn fledgling republic.

Tin Tut, a leader in the government's fight against the Communists, died last night of wounds suffered at the hands of an assassin who booby-trapped his car with a home-made bomb.

Police said they had uncovered an important clew to the identity of the assassin.

Tin Tut died without regaining consciousness. The bomb shattered his leg and jawbone and doctors were unable to operate because of the leader's weakened condition, due to shock and loss of blood.

A state funeral was planned, but no date was set pending the return of his widow, who is in England. Their children are attending school there. He had been slated to go to London soon to become his country's Ambassador to Britain.

Tin Tut was inspector general of the Burmese auxiliary force, a post he assumed after resigning as foreign minister.

Charles de Gaulle, whose leaders voted with the Communists against the government. The program was approved, 291 to 251.

De Gaulle, in a speaking tour of the south, continued to denounce what he called "the rule of parties."

In Annecy he renewed demands for new elections.

"We are democrats but the republic must not be defended against universal suffrage," he said.

He was greeted with some boos as well as cheers. In Grenoble, 13 persons still are in the hospital from a fight yesterday between his Rally of the French People followers and opponents. One Communist was killed.

A minor clash occurred in Annecy at the door of a left-wing newspaper during his speech today but no injuries were reported.

The assembly vote was taken after debate that lasted more than 24 hours.

Indians Seize Razakar Head In Hyderabad

Hyderabad City, Hyderabad, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Indian occupation authorities announced today that Syed Kasim Razvi, firebrand leader of the Moslem Razakar warriors, has been arrested and spirited away to a secret hiding place to prevent his followers from trying to rescue him.

Razvi and his fanatical Razakars were blamed by India for the "disorders" in Hyderabad which resulted in the invasion and five-day war.

Maj. Gen. J. N. Chaudhury, military governor of this conquered princely state, estimated that Hyderabad forces lost 600 regulars and 1500 Razakar irregulars killed and an unknown number wounded during the five-day war.

It was disclosed that Maj. Gen. Syed A. Eledroos, commander in chief of the Hyderabad army, issued a cease-fire order to his troops about an hour before the Nizam of Hyderabad decided to surrender, planning to commit suicide if he were not backed up by his government.

Indian tanks and troops entered Hyderabad City yesterday and were welcomed with a shower of flower petals from Hyderabadis who waved the tri-colored flag of India.

Three Zionists Here Condemn 'Horrifying' Bernadotte Crime

Murder of the United Nations mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, was condemned by three Zionist speakers here last night as "an irresponsible and horrifying act."

Hope for admission of Israel to the United Nations was voiced, coupled with a denunciation of the murder, by Rabbi Israel E. Friedman of New York City, membership secretary of the Mizrachi Organization of America. Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) and Mrs. Nachman H. Ebin, of New York City, national vice president of the Mizrachi Women's Organization.

Mizrachi Dinner

They spoke at a dinner sponsored by the joint Mizrachi Organization of Washington at the Hotel 2400, attended by more than 300 persons. The Mizrachi is the religious wing of the World Zionist Movement.

The Israeli Minister to the United States, Eliahu Epstein, announced as a speaker, was reported detained in Paris and unable to be present. Rabbi Wolf Gold, a member of the Israeli government, also was unable to be present.

A cablegram from Rabbi Gold in France was read saying that emergency complications arising from Count Bernadotte's death prevented him from attending the dinner. Presumably Epstein was detained in France for the same reason, it was said.

Rabbi Friedman said, "Mizrachi organization bitterly condemns the irresponsible and horrifying act of the slaying of the mediator.

Sympathy Extended

"We extend our deepest sympathy and condolences to the Bernadotte family."

"We who have been the butt of untold massacre and murder appreciate fully the horrors of such a deed. We are confident that the Israeli government of itself will bring the perpetrators to quick and speedy justice."

Also condemning the assassination, Representative Klein said, "No responsible Jew would do a thing like that."

Klein said the murder of Count Bernadotte "has set the state of Israel back 10 years. It is impossible to say how much harm it has done. These terrorists must be stamped out."

He expressed the fear that those who favored the Arabs against the Jews would now say that Israel did not have a responsible government.

Mrs. Ebin said, "Whoever did it, had a genius for doing the wrong thing."

Twelve United States sailors carried the U. N. mediator's body to the plane. A detachment of French soldiers placed Serot's body in the plane.

(An official announcement at Stockholm said funeral services for Bernadotte will be held at Gustav Vasa Church next Sunday. The body is expected to arrive in Stockholm Tuesday.

Constituent Assembly For Arab State in View

Damascus, Syria, Sept. 19 (AP).—Informed sources said today a Constituent Assembly for an Arab Palestine state may be set up somewhere outside the Holy Land within the next week.

The informants said several leading Palestinian Arabs have been summoned to Cairo for discussions related to proclamation of an Arab state in Palestine.

Truman Cables Sympathy Over Bernadotte Death

President Truman yesterday cabled the Swedish government America's regret and sympathy in the assassination of Count Folke Bernadotte.

In a message to King Gustaf, the President said:

"I desire to express to Your Majesty and to the government of Sweden my deepest sympathy and that of the Government of the United States upon the tragic death of Count Folke Bernadotte.

"His assassination, while so devotedly and effectively working for the establishment of peace in Palestine, is an irreparable loss to the world.

"I beg you to convey to Countess Bernadotte the expression of my most heartfelt regret."

Israel May Delay U. N. Application

Paris (Monday), Sept. 20 (AP).—Jewish sources said today the Isareli government may delay its application for membership in the United Nations because of the assassination of Count Folke Bernadotte.

The U. N. gave top priority to the search for peace in Palestine following the murder of Bernadotte.

Roving Red Squads Seize Berlin Papers

Berlin, Sept. 19 (AP).—Roving Communist strong-arm squads seized western Berlin newspapers in the Soviet zone of the city today in a move to embargo all non-Soviet publications.

As the raiders confiscated the papers, the Communist-controlled postal employes of the Russian sector said they would refuse to handle western papers because they were "warmongering."

The raiders hurried from one newsstand to another, ripping and scattering the papers. They demanded pledges from the dealers that they would refuse in the future to sell the western-licensed publications.

No Interference in Raids

Western papers reported Communist-controlled police of the Soviet sector refused to interfere with the raiders.

On the political front, the Russians intensified their efforts to turn the German population against the western Allies and non-Communist Germans. They sought to woo the Germans to the Communist side with overtures promising leniency in reparations demands.

This "sugar-bread" tactic also was evident in the action of Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, Russian sector commandant, who ordered a review of the 25-year sentences imposed last week on five Berlin youths who took part in the September 9 anti-Communist demonstration. A reduction was indicated.

Kotikov said the Soviet military court failed to take into account "the fact that these youths were under the influence of Fascist program speeches."

Senators Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) and J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) arrived in Germany for a "brief look at the situation." They arrived from Trieste, where Lucas said they were impressed by "how quiet things are and by the American troops there."

United States Representative George A. Smathers (D., Fla.) was aboard the same plane, en route from Rome.

American Cameraman Seized by Russians

Berlin, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Armed Russian soldiers seized an American press photographer today, as the Soviet "siege" of Berlin entered its fourth month.

Allyn Baum of Chicago, cameraman for International News Photos, was arested by two Soviet soldiers on the boundary separating the United States sector from the Soviet zone. It was not certain whether Baum was in United States territory when he was taken.

The photographer's German jeep driver said Baum was seized on a bridge spanning the sector boundary. He said Baum left the jeep at the bridge approach and walked on alone to snap some pictures of Russian territory.

Air Power Grows

Vandenberg Promises 70 Groups in '50

By the United Press

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg assured the Nation yesterday that it now has the "healthy nucleus" of a modern air force which is expanding on schedule toward its authorized peacetime strength.

Vandenberg

"We do not yet have enough air power, but what we do have is good," the Air Force Chief of Staff said in a statement marking the start of the USAF's second year as an independent service.

He said there is enough money available now to expand the Air Force from its present strength of 55 to 66 groups by July 1. Another four groups will be added in the following 12 months to bring the total to the full 70 groups authorized by Congress.

Vandenberg said the buying program is aimed at replacing World War II aircraft with the latest jet fighters and long-range bombers. Air Force personnel, he said, will be increased from the present 400,000 officers and men to 444,500 by June 30, 1949, and to 502,000 by June 30, 1950.

The Air Force introduced 19 new aircraft models during the last year.

The 13 groups of medium (B-29 Superfortress) bombers now operational will be increased this year to 20 medium and heavy bomb groups. One fighter group and three long-range reconnaissance groups will be organized this year to bring the total to 66 groups. Two more light bomb groups and two new troop-carrier groups will be organized during fiscal 1950 to complete the 70 groups.

Specialized squadrons to be organized in support of the 70 groups will include rescue, tow target, liaison, geodetic control, strategic support and special photographic types.

American airpower will include 57,946 Air National Guardsmen divided into 27 groups and 84 squadrons. In addition there will be 964 units of all types manned by 122,000 officers and airmen of the Air Reserve.

One new group will be equipped each month until the 66-goal is reached, Vandenberg said.

The general said the Air Force will receive this fiscal year approximately 1400 aircraft. These include jet fighters, the B-36, 10,000-mile bomber and the Boeing B-50, an improved B-29.

Sweden in War Pact With U. S., Moscow Charges

London (Monday), Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Radio Moscow charged today that Sweden has signed a secret treaty with the United States calling for wide "cooperation between the two countries in the event of war or the threat of war."

A Tass (official Soviet) news agency dispatch from Finland, was quoted as authority.

(In Washington, a State Department said "there's not one word of truth" in the report.)

The Moscow broadcast said the alleged secret treaty "is a supplement to the previously concluded, so-called bilateral agreement under the Marshall Plan."

The broadcast asserted that the treaty will not be submitted to the Swedish Riksdag (parliament) for approval, "because of the Swedish government's fear of a public protest and insistence on the maintenance of neutrality."

Alexander Faces Charges Today By State Dept.

By the United Press

Robert C. Alexander, veteran of 31 years in the State Department, replies today to department charges of "misconduct and dereliction of duty."

Assistant chief of the visa division, Alexander told a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee two months ago that the United Nations had been used as a cloak to allow subversive elements to enter the United States. He testified that "several hundred" undesirable aliens had been admitted for duties with U. N. or other international organizations.

Following strong protests by U. N. officials, Secretary of State Marshall appointed a committee which found "no basis" for the statements.

Belgians Bedeck U. S. Graves To Redress Insult to Dead

Neuville-en-Condroz, Belgium, Sept. 19 (AP).—More than 10,000 Belgians showed their regret today for what they considered an insult to American war dead.

They came here in what almost amounted to a national pilgrimage to pay respects at the closing by the United States Army of the last of its 37 temporary cemeteries in Europe.

Two real estate agents in Liege 10 days ago caused a furore by trying in court to force American graves registration authorities to abandon this site within eight days. They said Belgium had not paid them for the requisitioned land.

The closing of the cemetery was not related to the real estate men's action, which was dropped. The cemetery will, in fact, be reopened as one of Belgium's two permanent cemeteries for American war dead next March. By that time many of the 9820 bodies here will have been sent home and others will have been brought here from temporary graves throughout Europe.

The Belgians came today in special trains from Brussels, in chartered buses from Liege and in cars, on cycles and afoot. Many brought flowers which were heaped high on the graves. Some stuck little paper American Flags beside their flowers.

Two cabinet ministers, a Belgian general and 35 mayors of nearby towns paid official tributes to the dead.

been that negotiations of such seriousness should not be broken off without repeated proofs that progress is impossible.

Accordingly, there may be further talks with Molotov, either in Moscow or Paris, and perhaps another meeting with Stalin, before the western powers take the fateful step of going to the U. N.

[The United Press reported from Paris that Molotov would not head the Soviet delegation to Paris, but would send his deputy, Andrei Vishinsky.—Editor's note.]

Officials of the three western powers in Washington began consulting yesterday to determine their next move; further meetings are likely in Washington, London and Paris in the next few days. During Secretary Marshall's absence from Washington, Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett is expected to take charge of the day-to-day negotiations here.

Secretary of State and Mrs. George Marshall wave to friends as they board plane at National Airport yesterday

Accompanying Marshall

The Secretary was accompanied by Mrs. Marshall when he left at 1:10 yesterday on President Truman's plane, the Independence. Others traveling with him were State Department Counselor Charles E. Bohlen, with Mrs. Bohlen, and Brig. Gen. Marshall Carter, the Secretary's aide.

The Secretary will arrive in Paris to find most of his delegation still on the high seas. The liner America, bringing Ambassador Warren R. Austin, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and most of the delegation advisers, has been delayed almost 48 hours by zigzagging to escape an Atlantic hurricane.

The Secretary and his advisers fully expect a bitter war of words at the Assembly. Most of the top command at the State Department is tired, physically and mentally, from three months of almost incessant effort to cope with the Berlin crisis and other potentially dangerous situations.

Now these jaded officials face the prospect of listening to endless tongue-lashings from Soviet orators, and weeks of what American delegates at last year's Assembly denounced as "propaganda" speeches.

Soviet "Line" Anticipated

In his last public speech before leaving, delivered to the Federal Bar Association last Wednesday, Secretary Marshall appealed to American opinion for "patience and tolerance" in following the U. N.'s work. The need for public restraint was apparently on his mind then, and is expected to be reflected in the tone of his opening speech to the Assembly.

Whether or not the Berlin crisis reaches the U. N. American officials think they can foresee clearly what the Soviet line of attack at Paris will be.

At the 1946 Assembly the Soviet theme song was disarmament and the removal of Alied troops from nonenemy foreign soil. At the 1947 Assembly the Soviet "line" was set in a vituperative speech by Andrei I. Vishinsky against alleged "war-mongering" in non-Soviet countries.

This year, the Americans expect the Russians and their satellites to denounce the western powers' preparations for war, chiefly the rearmament by the United States and Great Britain. The Russians are thought likely to renew their old attack against the use of foreign bases, partly in the hope of forestalling the military agreements now being worked out by the five so-called "western union" countries of western Europe.

On other issues the American delegation will press for (1) Assembly support of the American plan for controlling atomic energy; (2) an Assembly vote of censure against the three northern neighbors of Greece for helping the Greek guerillas, and for continuance of the present U. N. border commission in Greece; (3) Assembly approval of the new independent regime in southern Korea, and (4) the permanent continuance of the so-called "Little Assembly," to meet during the year when the full Assembly is not in session.

Appeal to U. N. On Berlin Held Likely Now

Paris, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Russia today shut the door, at least for now, on the possibility of a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting on the Berlin crisis during the United Nations General Assembly which opens here Tuesday.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov will pass up for the second straight year the chance to head Russia's U.N. delegation. Instead, Moscow has announced the Russians will be led by Molotov's deputy, Andrei A. Vishinsky, the orator who directed the rough-and-tumble Soviet "warmongering" attack on the West at last year's Assembly.

The Moscow Radio announcement did not rule out the possibility that Molotov, always a man to pull surprises, may show up later for what promises to be the most crucial of all U.N. meetings.

If the four-power talks on Berlin in Moscow break down (and most U.N. people think that has just about happened), the western nations probably will carry their case to the Assembly, in an effort to get world opinion to blame the Soviet Union for the Berlin crisis.

The Kremlin's decision to keep Molotov home is believed to have increased the chances that the Big Three of the West will ask the U. N. to intervene. They hope world pressure will force Russia to give up the blockade.

The Russians themselves have not announced their attitude on tossing the Berlin problem to the U. N., but the Soviet-controlled press in Berlin has said the Russians will bitterly oppose any such move.

Big Barley Crop Gives Bavarians 8 Pct. Beer Again

Berlin, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—"The good old days" may return soon to the beer halls of Bavaria.

The military government has authorized breweries to resume the manufacture of eight per cent beer for the first time since the war. Up until now only 0.4, a watery beverage, has been permitted.

A record barley harvest encouraged governing officials to earmark 1000 tons of the grain for malting.

Truman Liked By Crowds in Offhand Role

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Aboard Presidential Special, Sept. 19.—President Truman, now headed for the Rockies and Denver, had time on this Sabbath day to ponder the reaction of crowds that have been turning out for him on this cross-country swing.

Here is the way it seems to those who are traveling aboard his 17-car campaign special:

The people appear to like Mr. Truman immensely, whether they intend to vote for him or not.

They like his folksy off-the-cuff talks far more than they do his ghost-written, full-dress speeches.

Don't Like Doom Note

Now enjoying a prosperity such as the country has never known before, they don't react well to prophecies of doom. In other words, they don't seem to care for, or subscribe to, Mr. Truman's dire warnings about the disaster that would follow a Republican victory in November.

In short, the crowds seem to like Harry Truman, the friendly raconteur from Independence, Mo., much more than they do an angry Harry Truman candidate.

This was illustrated yesterday in Dexter, Ia., and again and again as the campaign train traveled southward last night on the way to Kansas City. In his first rear-platform appearance after he crossed the Missouri line, Mr. Truman charmed a crowd that gathered along the tracks at Trenton.

He told about his ties with Trenton and about his experiences as a youngster.

"When I was a kid," he said, "I had a job in the National Bank of Commerce in Kansas City. I was getting 35 dollars a month, and I had an old lady who ran a boarding house out on 1314 Troost, and she let me live there and have two meals a day for $5 dollars a week.

"Imagine that, and she was a native of Trenton, Mo. That has been so long ago I hate to remember just exactly how long it has been. But because that good old lady was so kind to me, I have always had a warm spot in my heart for this town, even if it does go Republican sometimes.

"I don't think you are going to do that next time. How about it?"

"No" came the response from the crowd.

Question About Missouri

The Gallup poll would indicate that Mr. Truman is a favorite to capture the 15 electoral votes of his native Missouri November 2. From all indications, the Republicans are afraid the poll is correct.

Some of the Kansas City political analysis, however, say that Missouri is very much of a 50-50 battle ground.

They say that the Negro vote may decide the outcome in the end.

For a time, according to this analysis, it looked as if Henry Wallace would get a big share of the Negro vote. Now, Wallace's strength in Missouri appears to be disintegrating, and the Negro voters are lining up either behind President Truman or Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

As for the other States through which Mr. Truman has traveled on this trip, one is doubtful and five seem reasonably certain to go Republican.

The doubtful one is Maryland. Those that appear to be headed for the Republican column are Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa.

This was a quiet day for the Chief Executive, the First Lady and Miss Margaret Truman. They spent most of it resting in the family home at Independence, Mo., 12 miles outside of Kansas City.

At 10 o'clock this morning, Mr. Truman got behind the wheel of a borrowed car (a Dodge convertible and drove to the home of his sister, Miss Mary Jane Truman, at Grandview, Mo.

After that, accompanied only by a Secret Service man, he journeyed to the farm of his brother, Vivian Truman. He walked around the farm and then returned to Independence to rest until it was time to board his train.

Tomorrow, in Denver, Colo., Mr. Truman will make a speech to a crowd on the lawn of the State Capitol. Later he will make rear-platform talks in Colorado Springs and Pueblo.

Help for Education Pledged by McGrath

Chairman J. Howard McGrath of the Democratic National Committee said yesterday that Americans can "rest assured" that the educational needs of their children will be met if the Democrats win in November.

The Rhode Island Senator recalled that President Truman repeatedly asked the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress to pass the 1948 aid-to-education bill which would have allotted a minimum of 300 million dollars a year for the Nation's schools.

headed by Gov. Robert D. Blue, will board the train at Davenport, and ride with Mr. Dewey into Des Moines.

In contrast to President Truman's campaign opener at nearby Dexter, Iowa, last night, Governor Dewey's curtain raiser is expected to cover a lot more ground than the farm issue.

One of his aides said it probably will "keynote" the entire pattern of Mr. Dewey's compaign. Unchanged since the Governor polished up the final draft a week ago, it isn't intended as a "reply" to Mr. Truman.

More than 100 persons, most of them newsmen, were aboard as the 17-car Dewey special streaked out of Albany at 4:15 p. m. not to return until October 3.

Additional campaign plans are still under wraps, but Mr. Dewey's brief stop in Illinois tomorrow won't be his last in that key State. He plans to return to Chicago for a major speech just before the election.

Dewey a 'Near Certainty,' Norman Thomas Asserts

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 19 (U.P.)—Socialist Presidential Candidate Norman Thomas today said the election of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is 'a near certainty."

Thomas said President Truman is "showing an admirable political courage" in running for reelection, but his "confusion" makes him an "incompetent and unsafe leader."

Dewey, he said, is "a very ambitious opportunist, a competent administrator who emphatically is a crusader for no cause and has shown no greatness such as the times demand."

Truman 'Humilating' Nation, Brownell Says

By the United Press

Republican Campaign Manager Herbert Brownell, jr., charged yesterday that President Truman is "humiliating" the Nation by conducting a "campaign of fear and smear."

Teamster Silence Blamed on Beck

(This is the second of two articles by a former editor of the Teamster's Union Magazine.)

By Lester M. Hunt

The International Brotherhood of Teamsters would be leading the labor parade for President Truman today if its executive board had not suddenly canceled plans to hold a Nation-wide meeting in Washington early this month.

The cancellation occurred last month in Chicago.

It was based on the recommendation of President Daniel J. Tobin of Indianapolis, inspired by the wishes of Executive Vice President David Beck of Seattle.

Beck opposed the meeting because it would probably have stampeded for President Truman.

Beck has portrayed himself as the warm friend of Gov. Earl Warren of California; as the man whose nod would send the teamsters in the 11 Western States trooping to the polls to vote for Dewey and Warren.

If a national convention of delegates from all teamster local unions had been held and had indorsed President Truman, Beck's political stature would have been reduced to that of a precinct committeeman.

Beck would have had strong and effective opposition at such a convention.

It would have come from James Hoffa of Detroit and his large following in the Middle West. Hoffa is a trustee of the international union. He has swung the Michigan teamsters to President Truman in spite of the decision of the executive board.

If he had challenged Beck before a national convention and won, he would have been hailed as the logical successor to Tobin, a position that Beck has preempted for himself.

The only way the convention could have been swung to the Republican ticket would have been with the assistance of John O'Rourke of New York, a powerful man in that section.

O'Rourke was a Dewey man while Beck was cracking the whip for Roosevelt. He has prior claim among teamster leaders for recognition if the Republican take over.

Therefore, if the teamster convention in Washington had been delivered to the Republicans, it would have been O'Rourke, not Beck, who did the job.

Beck had nothing to gain out of such a meeting. He would have come out barefooted thumbing a ride back to Seattle on the caravan of either Hoffa or O'Rourke.

So there will be no meeting. The bulk of the million members of the teamsters' union will continue to vote Democratic as they have been doing under the exhortations of Tobin since 1928.

With the national convention abandoned, Tobin is pushed completely out of the political picture. Beck has taken his place.

But all is not well in the land of the setting sun, in spite of Beck's deft maneuver. He is irretriveably committed to the support of Gov. Mon Wallgren of Washington, running for reelection as a Democrat.

Instead of regarding Beck as the savior of Dewey and Waren, Washington State Republicans are atacking him for his support of the Democratic State ticket.

They know that if Washington elects a Democratic Governor, it may also choose Democratic presidential electors.

Former Gov. Arthur B. Langlie, the Republican nominee for Governor, has publicly branded Beck as the child of the Democratic Party, citing the fact that Wallgren named him as regent of the University of Washington, while his Democratic predecessor was put on the State parole board.

Thus Beck is in the delicate position of being a Republican when he is standing up and a Democrat when he is sitting down. And neither side likes it.

Pronounced Shift of Income to South and West From New England, Mid-East States Noted

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Go West—and South— young man.

Horace Greeley's famous advice was thus modified by the Office of Business Economics of the Commerce Department last night.

OBE reported that a study of the last 20 years has indicated a "pronounced" shift of "income from the New England and Middle Eastern States to the South and West."

In 1929 New England and Middle Eastern States enjoyed 42 per cent of the total national income. In 1947 that had dwindled to 35 per cent.

In the same period the proportion of the national income that went to the Southeast, Southwest, Northwest and Far West jumped from 29 to 37 per cent. The large central region—the grain belt—changed little, from 29 to 28 per cent.

The report came as New England Senators were demanding a congressional investigation of the closing of New England and Virginia textile mills. Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.), chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, announced his group will open hearings at Nashua, N. H., Wednesday. The Textron Co., which has operated a large mill in Nashua, announced last week it was closing six New England mills. Simultaneously it was announced that the Puerto Rico Development Co. had built a $3,500,000 textile mill in Puerto Rico, which will be operated by Textron. The mill will start out with 25,000 spindles for manufacture of cotton textiles and is expected to produce about 15 million yards of fabric a year.

Manufacture of cotton textiles has been a prime New England industry for years.

The Commerce Department study showed that all regions in the country have shared in the general increase in income. Last year's average income per person in the United States was $1323, Commerce reported, against only $680 in 1929. But the South and West scored the biggest percentage gain.

Here's the regional score on the per-person average advance:

Southeast (Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia)—from $344 in 1929 to $883 in 1947, a 157 per cent gain.

Southwest (Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas)—$464 to $1081, a 133 per cent gain.

Northwest (Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming)—$534 to $1373, a 157 per cent gain.

Far West (California, Nevada, Oregon and Washington)—$865 to $1559, an 80 per cent gain.

New England (Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont)—$833 to $1444, a 72 per cent gain.

Middle East (Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia)—$926 to $1559, a 66 per cent gain.

Central (Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin)—$720 to $1391, a 93 per cent gain.

Credit Curbs Begin Today

By The Associated Press

Installment buying returns to Federal control today.

Down payments and length of time to pay will be governed. Ordinary charge accounts won't. Most consumer goods costing $50 to $5000 are covered and easy payment loans are time-limited.

The Federal Reserve Board made the rules. There are criminal penalties, and the board also has the power to put a violator out of credit business.

Here are the terms:

After down payment, 18 months to pay if the balance exceeds $1000, 15 months if $1000 or less.

One third down on automobiles. Twenty per cent down on cook stoves, dishwashers, ironers, refrigerators, washing machinees, air conditioners, radios, phonographs, television sets, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, furniture and rugs.

Personal loans of lending houses must be repaid within 15 or 18 months, depending on the size; if over $1000 the minimum monthly payment is $70.

Thousands Get Tax Increases

returns made according to the schedule will never be questioned. Last year we made only 180 individual appraisals as a result of appeals. This year, despite the increases, we have had fewer appeals than in any previous year. Most taxpayers are satisfied when they examine the schedule and understand their own assessment is an average assessment in their house-price class for the 53,557 taxpayers."

The schedule, in part, follows:

Assessed Valuation Household	Net Household Effects
$7,000	$200
$10,000	$750
$12,000	$1,050
$15,000	$1,500
$17,000	$1,900
$20,000	$3,000
$30,000	$5,000
$50,000	$9,000
$75,000	$20,000
$100,000	$25,000

Martin said few, if any, personal property assessments on apartment dwellers were increased this year. The theory is that most apartments are relatively small and few have more than $1000 exemption in household effects.

Nearly 7000 more personal property tax bills are going out this year than were paid last year, with an anticipated yield of $5,556,291 compared to $4,869,658 last year.

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The 1948-49 Metropolitan Opera season will open the night of November 29, Edward Johnson, general manager, announced today.

By The Associated Press

Attorney General Clark yesterday accused a Senate committee headed by Senator Ferguson (R., Mich) of having made "unfair and uninformed criticism" of the Administration's loyalty check of Government employes.

Clark made the accusation in a delayed reply to an investigating subcommittee report published September 5.

In that report, the committee complained that the loyalty program is "inadequate," filled with "dangerous delays" and needs prompt overhauling.

Four days later, Clark said in his statement released late yesterday, he conferred with Ferguson over the matter. With Clark were Harry B. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission, and Arthur Flemming, former commission member. Two members of the Ferguson subcommittee also were present, Clark said.

Clark said he personally pointed out "that there was no substantial basis" for many of the statements made in the committee's report.

"After we had presented our views in detail," Clark said, "Senator Ferguson requested us not to file the statement and said they (the committee) would check into our objections and if they were well taken, would make suitable corrections."

Clark said his statement was then withheld at that time.

In the meantime, Clark declared, Senator Ferguson has released to the press "information that is most confidential, evidently through 'leaks' or 'tips' concerning criminal cases pending in the department.

"He did this," Clark added, "in an apparent effort to lead the public into believing that he forced the Department of Justice to act, although he knows the matters to which he referred in the press were started months ago."

Politics Charged

Clark said he had accordingly notified Ferguson through committee counsel that his previously prepared reply to the subcommittee would be made public. He said Ferguson's statements "are obviously issued for political purpose."

One of the basic reasons why the original loyalty program of President Truman was not put into immediate effect, Clark said, "was the failure of the Eightieth Congress to appropriate sufficient funds."

But the program which was put into operation, Clark said, has been working with a high degree of efficiency and neither the program nor those responsible for the manner in which it functions deserve the unfair and uninformed criticism contained in the subcommittee's report."

As to the committee's complaint that the operation of the loyalty program "has been unreasonably delayed," Clark said the presidential order setting it up was issued March 21, 1947, but that Congress did not provide any funds until July 26, 1947.

Clark said the Civil Service Commission soon issued over two million forms and that these were processed with such dispatch and efficiency that the FBI had finished checking every one submitted to it before August 1, this year.

As to a committee assertion that applicants for Federal jobs are still appointed prior to any investigation as to their loyalty and thus may have as much as 120 days' access to confidential material before investigations are completed, Clark replied that the Senate report:

"Fails to show that the Civil Service Commission asked for an appropriation for full field investigations of applicants for such sensitive positions in the Federal Government. The Congress denied this request."

In closing, Clark said:

"This is the first time in the history of our country that the Government has undertaken a complete check of the loyalty of every one of its employes. Although in any project of this magnitude there is of course always room for improvement, we believe that even in the short period of its existence, the President's loyalty program has proved to be most effective."

Probers Tracing Wartime State Code Leak

By The Associated Press

The United States naval attache who served in Moscow during the war will be asked by congressional spy probers to back up testimony that President Roosevelt believed the State Departmen code was "not secure."

He is Rear Admiral Jack Duncan, retired. Admiral W. H. Standley, also retired, has said Duncan will confirm Standley's testimony that Mr. Roosevet used the Navy code instead of the State Department code to send secret messages to American diplomats in Russia.

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the House Un-American Activities Committee, said the committee will question Duncan shortly.

Standley, who was United States Ambassador to Russia in 1942 and 1943, testified at a subcommittee session in Los Angeles last week that President Roosevelt shared "the general impression" that the State Department code could not be trusted.

He said there was a general impression at the time that "the State Department codes were not secure," and that "there were leaks from the State Department."

It was at the time of the reported "leaks" that a Communist spy ring, according to testimony of some witnesses, was operating in Washington.

Today the committee plans to question Mrs. Louise Bransten, 40, of New York. She has been identified in previous testimony as a social acquaintance of prominent Russians in this country.

Wednesday the committee plans to go to New York to question Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kasenkina, Russian teacher who jumped last month from a window in the Soviet consulate.

Public hearings in the spy hunt may be reopened the week after next.

Jefferson Memorial Land Sinks 2 Feet

Where Hurricane Lashes Freighter

STORM'S PATH—Arrow indicates path of Caribbean hurricane which is lashing the British freighter Lochmonar (symbol) near little Cayman Island, south of Cuba. Seventy-three persons are aboard the stricken ship which struck a reef during the storm. Story on Page 1

If the land around the Thomas Jefferson Memorial looks a little lower to you now than it did in 1943, when the monument was inaugurated, it's not an optical illusion.

According to the National Park Service, the land has sunk 18 inches to two feet in some places. And it's still dropping.

The memorial itself, however, is safe, a park service spokesman said. He pointed out that it rests on 90-foot piles driven to bedrock. Periodic checks are made, he assured.

Along with the checks, he reported, engineers are still studying the land itself, five years after the built-up terrain was completed.

"The situation at the memorial has been analyzed many times," he said. "It is the consensus of engineers that the land eventually will become stable." Built-up land around the Lincoln Memorial, he disclosed, has finished settling.

On the ground surrounding the Jefferson Memorial, only temporary work is being done to readjust the sinking roadways, walks and steps. Eventually, permanent repairs will be made, including use of piles, to give some of the land the sturdiness of the memorial itself, according to the spokesman.

Hill Replies on Equalization

Richmond, Va., Sept. 19 (AP)—City Councilman Oliver W. Hill today replied to a report of G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction, which cited Negro school progress in Virginia and asked cooperation instead of court action in efforts to equalize the schools.

Before members of the Richmond Chapter, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, he declared:

"He asks us to cooperate and give him time. I ask you, how much time does he need?

"It has been eight long years since the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the Alston case decreed that discrimination in Negro teachers' salaries was a violation of their constitutional rights. And still, in Mr. Miller's own report, he says that 30 counties and 5 cities are still discriminating."

Hill is a member of the law firm representing Negro children in recent Federal Court actions in an effort to achieve equal school facilities.

AGAIN and again we are asked, "What's so different about Dynaflow Drive?"

Again and again we say: "Dynaflow is a completely new way of delivering power from engine to rear wheels.

"Just press the gas treadle—and the oil-filled Dynaflow drum does all the things gears used to do in normal, forward driving."

Then folks get a chance to try Dynaflow. Maybe in city traffic. Maybe on the open road. Maybe on hills, maybe in the flatlands.

And every time they come back saying, "Why don't you tell us these things? Why, it's wonderful! It's marvelous! So smooth—so easy—so trigger-quick!

"Why don't you say it's out of this world?"

Well, we've been trying to. We've come right out and called it the biggest thing since the self-starter.

Equal School Facilities Declared Arlington's Policy

Va. Constitution Cited in Refusal To Mix Two Races

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

The cry for equal educational facilities for Virginia Negroes echoed in Washington's back yard last week when nine Negro parents were refused permission to enroll their children in white Washington-Lee High School, Arlington.

To Arlington educators this cry already is a twice-told tale. The Arlington School Board last year got the issue on a legal basis when a 16-year-old Negro girl, Constance Carter, filed suit through her attorney, Dr. Leon Ransom, charging her education was inadequate because of racial discrimination and asking admission in Washington-Lee High School.

The school board and School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp have denied such discrimination exists in the county system. They have cited the Virginia constitution as their basis for denying the Carter girl last year—and the nine Hoffman-Boston parents this year—use of white educational facilities.

Division Differs

This constitutional ground is the same one cited earlier this year in tests of "equal educational facilities" in King George and Surry Counties, Virginia.

But the similarity of these counties to Arlington just about stops there:

About 35 per cent of King George County's population is nonwhite. More than 60 per cent of Surry County's population is nonwhite. In Arlington, only 5.3 per cent of the population is non-white.

King George, Surry, Chesterfield and Gloucester Counties are under court order to provide equal educational facilities. In Arlington, litigation on the Carter case is still under way. The Hoffman-Boston incident last week is expected to be used only as "supplementary evidence" by attorneys in the case.

No Pay Differential

Unlike some Virginia counties, including Surry, Arlington has had no differential in salaries paid to white and Negro teachers. Negro teachers get the same credit for teaching experience that white teachers get.

The result has been that the average salary for a Negro teacher in the Arlington elementary schools last year was $3460, as compared with $2682 for the white teacher. In high schools, the average was $2750 for Negro teachers, $3000 for white.

Arlington school officials have cited it as their "fixed and determined policy . . . to afford equal opportunity and facilities" for the two races.

James B. Copp, an attorney and associate of Dr. Ransom, who accompanied the nine Hoffman-Boston parents on their unsuccessful mission to Washington-Lee High School, denied this equality by citing five major shortcomings in the Hoffman-Boston School.

Shortcomings Listed

The "shortcomings," announced after a comparative tour of Hoffman-Boston and Washington-Lee Schools, included inadequate library, no gymnasium, no stadium, no electric machinery in science shop, and grouping of primary and secondary students in one school.

County school officials do not feel the two schools can be compared. They do not cover the same grade levels, nor do they have comparable enrollments, they say.

Arlington school officials, who declined to be quoted because of pending litigation, point out that the scope of subjects offered in a given school depends on the demand for each course.

In a school such as Hoffman-Boston, with only 180 students in the secondary grades, it is economically impossible to offer as many courses as at Washington-Lee, with about 2100 students.

They cannot, for instance, start a class in electrical engineering because one student wants it. From the educators' viewpoint, it would be better if Arlington had more Negro students.

On a per pupil basis, the county had to pay more for its Negro students last year than for its white. In elementary schools, the per pupil cost was $94 for white, $111 for Negro students. In the secondary schools, the cost was $139 for white, $141 for Negro.

Good Case by Percentage

Percentagewise, school officials feel they have a good case for "equal facilities."

The county has a nonwhite population of 5.3 per cent. Last year Negro students made up 6.3 per cent of the school membership and received education in 9 per cent of the county's school system.

The high school enrollment this year is about 7 per cent of the total, but Negro students are using 11 per cent of the county's classrooms, numerically.

The Negro population trend in Arlington County also runs contrary to the white. Arlington has at least 2000 more preschool white youths than it now has in county schools.

But there are an estimated 1150 Negro children in the county between ages of 6 and 17, as compared with only 900 who are 6 years of age or under.

County population experts feel that the ratio of 95-5 in white and nonwhite population will not materially change in the years to come. If anything, the white ratio may mount.

Decline in Attendance

Another factor is the declining rate of attendance of Negro students in the upper secondary grades. On the basis of current figures, Hoffman-Boston senior classes usually number about 20 students—the smallest class in the school. Many Negro students stop in education as soon as they reach the age of 16—compulsory school attendance limit under Virginia law.

At Hoffman-Boston School, with 180 students at high school level, courses include four years of English, French, Spanish, German (not offered at Washington-Lee), home economics, history, general science, biology, chemistry and physics, algebra, plane geometry and advanced algebra, typing, shorthand and general shop work.

At Washington-Lee High School, with an estimated 2100 students at high school level, courses, in addition to those offered at Hoffman-Boston, include:

Trigonometry, solid geometry, commercial arithmetic, general math, civics, Latin, commercial law, business correspondence, introductory business, bookkeeping, retail salesmanship, consumer buying, industrial arts, auto mechanics, machine shop, print shop, art appreciation, commercial art and home nursing.

Principals of the Hoffman-Boston and Washington-Lee High Schools have refused to enter the controversy on comparative merits of the two schools.

S. M. Sidnall, Hoffman-Boston principal, said textbooks used there are comparable to or the same as those in other county schools.

The library this year will be twice last year's size, although a number of books on order have not yet arrived. The home economics section is well equipped in a unit separate from the main school buildings.

On the other side, the school has no cafeteria. Students may buy milk at 3 cents a bottle, but must provide other food. The general shop is well equipped in woodworking supplies, needs additional equipment in other industrial arts. Shop space is adequate to present use by students.

There is no gymnasium or stadium, and physical education is carried on in lectures in the auditorium or in play on an ungraded field outside the school. The county proposes to set up a basketball court on the school grounds, Sidnall said.

Both at Hoffman-Boston and at Washington-Lee, students use the auditorium and library space as study halls, because of insufficient classroom space.

Said Washington-Lee Principal Claude M. Richmond, "I don't see how you can compare two school plants that are not designed to serve the same student load, and the same grade load."

Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent, explained, "I think you have to see Arlington's problem in providing educational facilities for Negroes as part of the whole educational problem here—and that is a big problem."

Now being sought is a referendum to approve a bond issue for some of the 12 million dollars' worth of school construction estimated to be needed in Arlington within the next six years.

Dr. Edward J. Braun, consultant for the county school board, at a public hearing this week said that some of the money now sought would be used to improve conditions at the county's Negro schools.

Specifically, he said, it is planned to use Hoffman-Boston as a junior and senior high school only, and accommodate elementary pupils in a proposed new building.

Dr. Braun said the county also wants to build a $250,000 Negro senior high school in 1950-51.

Last summer the county spent or contracted for about $20,000 worth of work at Hoffman-Boston School i. improvements and personnel. Among work ordered was a two-room classroom addition at the school.

Last week the Arlington County School Board voted to pay the tuition of any Negro senior high school student who wishes to attend the Manassas Vocational School in Virginia. The rate is about $100, school officials said.

Some sources feel the board should take similar action so far as District schools are concerned, although the tuition charged is nearly double the Virginia rate. The board has not indicated it will take such action.

Strange Clemency

Incredulity followed by indignation greeted the news from Berlin that the sentence of Frau Ilse Koch, widow of the commandant of the Buchenwald concentration camp, has been commuted from life imprisonment to a mere four years. The commutation was authorized by the United States Military Government in an order approved by General Clay.

The ghoulish and probably psychopathological taste of Frau Koch for gloves, lampshades, book bindings and other articles made from the skin of human corpses is said to have been responsible for the murders of an undetermined number of prisoners at the camp. In the course of time Frau Koch appears to have become somewhat fastidious about the character of the skins used for these strange curios and to have shown a particular fondness for those containing tattoo marks. The report of the American prosecuting staff of the International Military Tribunal at Nuernberg cites the following statement about Frau Koch's hobby, given to American military intelligence officers by a German war prisoner familiar with practices at Buchenwald.

> In 1939 all prisoners with tattooing on them were ordered to report to the dispensary. No one knew what the purpose was. But after the tattooed prisoners had been examined the ones with the best and most artistic specimens were kept in the dispensary, and then killed by injections administered by Karl Beigs, a criminal prisoner. The corpses were then turned over to the pathological department where the desired pieces were turned over to SS Sandartenfuehrer Koch's wife who had them fashioned into lampshades and other ornamental articles. . . . This work was done by a prisoner named Wernerbach.

Five years later stretching frames containing sections of tattoed skin were discovered by the occupation forces, indicating that the practice had been followed at Buchenwald for a long time. These were afterward introduced as exhibits at the Nuernberg trials.

However, a subsequent Army report in the case of Frau Koch stated that evidence of her direct participation in the murders of the tattooed prisoners was not considered sufficient to warrant a sentence of life imprisonment. This statement seems rather extraordinary in view of the evidence already published which certainly tends to indicate that Frau Koch was at the least an accessory after the fact.

The military government, we think, owes both the American public, and the relatives of the innumerable victims of many nationalities including the Germans who perished at Buchenwald, a full and frank statement of the reasons for extending clemency in this case. It is worth observing that the various objections raised against the proceedings at Nuernberg, based for the most part on points of international law, were hardly applicable to the special trial of Frau Koch and her co-defendants, at least two of whom were hanged. The crime of which they were accused is one for which penalties are provided in the law of every civilized country. The crime was murder under circumstances so macabre and horrible that to find an example to surpass it one would almost have to review the crimes for which Irma Grese and Juanna Bormann of the Belsen camp were hanged by the British at Hamburg.

Aid From Albania

Dwight Griswold, chief of the United States mission in Greece, has returned to this country and will resign his duties after making a final report on accomplishments of the mission during the past year. That report, very likely, will have as much to say about the difficulties of effective operations in Greece as about concrete achievements. The Greek government is certainly far from the most desirable kind of partner Mr. Griswold could have wished, and freed of the shackles of circumspection required by his official position he may be expected not to hold his punches.

But whatever of disparagement he may have to say of the Greek government, he assuredly will have more to say in criticism of the opposition to it. In this he has opportune support from the United Nations. The U. N. Special Commission on the Balkans has just issued in Athens its findings on Albanian assistance to the Greek guerillas. "During the whole of the Grammos operations, assistance and supplies reached the Greek guerillas from Albania," the U. N. observers reported. "There is no doubt but that this aid was rendered at least with the knowledge and approval of the Albanian government." These findings were based on the evidence accumulated on the spot by 10 teams of U. N. observers. They are not subject to accusation of chauvinistic partiality or ideological bias.

The United Nations Commission, not being called on to do so, did not pursue its investigation beyond the Greek-Albanian frontier. Had it done so, the trail of responsibility for armed intervention would have led via Tirana to Moscow. It is not to be expected that the Kremlin, a notably vociferous source of accusations about other people's intervention in Greece, will be particularly embarrassed by the U. N. report. The Soviet leaders are markedly less interested in the facts of the situation than in planting the idea of guilt elsewhere.

Report On The FCC

The Select Committee of the House which has been investigating the Federal Communications Commission has done a remarkably fine job of setting up straw men and shooting them full of holes. But this is about all that can be said for its current report. The extent of the committee's distortion of the FCC's ruling as to the right of atheists to go on the air may be seen from the following sentence of the report: "If the dictum contained in the Scott Decision were literally applied, atheists would be entitled to answer each Protestant, Catholic, or Jewish program." But the hearings before the committee and the FCC's decision itself seem to us to leave no warrant whatever for such an interpretation.

What the commission did say is that atheists should not be arbitrarily excluded from the air merely because they are few or because their views do not conform to those of the broadcaster. Radio, as the Supreme Court has said, "inherently is not available to all." But it ought to be managed in the spirit of freedom of speech so far as that is possible. If the broadcaster were permitted to keep any minority group off the air because he did not like its viewpoint he could scarcely be said to be serving the public interest in a democracy. That basic point in the FCC's decision seems to us to be beyond challenge, and indeed the Select Committee does not directly challenge it.

One test of the commission's attitude may be seen in its renewal of the license of Station WHAM in Rochester in spite of its denial of time to the Society of Free Thinkers. The committee regards this as a reversal of the FCC decision in the Scott case. Chairman Coy of the FCC replies that, on the contrary, the renewal was made upon the assurance of the licensee that the Free Thinkers had not been denied time because they disagreed with his point of view. In other words, the FCC expects the broadcaster to manage his station in the public interest, as the law requires. It is a question of reasonableness and over-all fairness, and we find it difficult to see how the decision over which so much furor has been raised could have been fairly interpreted in any other light. To read into it the absurd notion that the FCC was ordering atheists to be granted time to reply to every religious program is to manufacture controversy where no real ground for it exists.

There are other shabby aspects to the report. It asserts that the FCC consults its public information director before handing down decisions, which is not true. Apparently the committee seized upon an offhand remark by FCC General Counsel Cattone in spite of the explicit statement by Commissioner Rosel Hyde to the effect that "we did not consult our public relations officer as to what action we should take in the matter, nor is it our custom to consult him on how we should decide cases before the commission." Then, in criticizing the commission for holding that broadcasters have no right to censor libelous or slanderous statements in political broadcasts, the committee neglected even to mention that the law passed by Congress forbids such censorship. It is a pity that a congressional committee, which sets out to enlighten the public, should stoop to distortion that brings itself and the investigative technique it uses into disrepute.

Ship Knot

Harry Bridges' threat to keep striking West Coast longshoremen away from their jobs until the shipping companies are forced out of business is hardly a good augury for early settlement of the tieup. It is, however, indicative of Mr. Bridges' own interest in the dispute. The walkout of five CIO maritime unions involves far more than the usual question of wages, and there is reason to believe that Mr. Bridges, who is in disfavor with the national CIO leadership, is using the strike as a move of desperation to hold on to his job. From the standpoint of the companies, the strike affords an opportunity for an attack on Communist-line policies of the unions.

The principal surface argument involves the now familiar question of hiring halls. These employment agencies have been operated by the unions, and nonmembers have been given access to jobs only after union members have been taken care of. The National Labor Relations Board recently held that hiring halls conducted on this basis are illegal under the Taft-Hartley law. In demanding that the companies agree to continue the old system, the unions really are asking that the operators conspire to violate the law. Of course, they cannot be expected to agree to any such proposition.

In one other area the operators have resorted to a warped interpretation of the law. They have announced that they will not deal with unions whose officers refuse to sign affidavits, indicating that are not Communists. It is undeniably true that the refusal of Mr. Bridges and his cohorts to comply with this request renders them suspect—if their record of public pronouncements had not already done so. But such affidavits are required under the Taft-Hartley Act only as a preliminary to recourse to the NLRB; they are not a prerequisite to bargaining.

In the matter of wages the parties are not far apart. And, with good faith on the part of Mr. Bridges, a compromise should be possible on the hiring hall problem, either through an agreement by the unions to operate the halls on a nondiscriminatory basis, or through joint union-management supervision. His recent remarks that the strike will last four to six months, coupled with his energetic support of Henry Wallace, however, invite the suspicion that he is interested not so much in agreement as in a sounding board. Meanwhile the paralysis continues, and residents of Hawaii and Alaska, who had a similar experience at the hands of Mr. Bridges only a few months ago, are girding for another siege. They cannot resort to independent means, as the Army has done to supply its troops in Japan and Korea. Certainly the plight of these territories warrants every effort to avoid leaving their vital services dependent on Mr. Bridges' caprice.

Idea Exchange

The problem of how to maintain some sort of intellectual liaison with the countries under Soviet domination, which the State Department currently is pondering, is indeed baffling. The Soviet Union and its satellites have built a Chinese Wall against infection from alien thought. Such is the fear of Western ideas that very probably any effort to initiate an exchange of students and teachers with eastern Europe, as called for in the Smith-Mundt Act, would meet with a rebuff.

Yet the antidote for the iron curtain is not another iron curtain. As Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen told members of the Advisory Commission on Educational Exchange last week:

> It is clear that the Soviet Union will lose by this policy of isolation. Countries which encourage educational exchange will progress much faster than any totalitarian or isolationist regime. Let us avoid like the plague any policy of following in Soviet footsteps.

Educator-members of the advisory commission have expressed themselves initially as in favor of keeping American doors open to intellectual exchange. It is obvious, however, that any exchange with iron curtain countries would have extremely limited application at this time. Commission Chairman Harvie Branscomb, chancellor of Vanderbilt University, pointed out that the very fact that a teacher has been permitted to continue his work in a country subject to control of thought police "is strong evidence that he has sacrificed his intellectual freedom to become a tool of the Communist Party." The governments of such countries would be unlikely to let students or teachers venture abroad unless they had been pretty thoroughly indoctrinated. Nor would they be likely to admit Americans on any basis of academic freedom.

But, whatever the practical obstacles, the door to such exchange ought not to be closed. As an arm of our foreign policy, a flexible, selective procedure with respect to eastern Europe might prove of inestimable utility in exploiting cracks in the iron curtain. It is not inconceivable that Yugoslavia, Poland or other governments on the periphery of Soviet influence might be susceptible to an exchange agreement. Further, and more important, there is a consideration of principle. For this country to reply in kind to the intellectual wall would be to confess a fear for the security of our own ideas. It also would be tantamount to saying that the iron curtain is absolute and permanent.

O, Pioneer!

Looking over the financial columns of the New York Times, as we sometimes do in moments of desperation, our eye fell on an item of more than ordinary import to all proponents of free-enterprise capitalism. One of the vice presidents of General Motors, the one in charge of distribution, has resigned, our contemporary said, "to enter private business."

Being within naked-eye range of the Federal Government, we have been highly conscious of and no less concerned over the way many of the most competent public servants have been departing for the greener pastures of private business. But until now we had not realized that the siren call was being felt in the General Motors administration out in Detroit, too. Apparently the man who once said that the real boss of all big business is the Collector of Internal Revenue wasn't so far wrong after all.

He had in mind, of course, the endless forms, rules, regulations, inspections, reports and red tape that issue from the Government, severely limit the freedom of all enterprise in this so-called free enterprise system, and occupy so much of the time of executives in any large concern. What impresses us is that the subconscious realization of this state of affairs has become so natural that General Motors—of all firms—can be referred to, albeit indirectly and inadvertently, as if it were not private business.

We commend the issue to the attention of Mr. Henry Wallace and of the World Council of Churches, and wish the vice president well in his bold venture out of the safe compound of Government-controlled enterprise into the distant wilds of private business.

ENGLISH WILDERNESS

Over these grasses no light feet fall, no young mouths open to these springs;
there is only the boot owl's call and the dark rush of wings.

The naked trees lean down, lonely sentries of a lost yesterday;
there is the cold moon and the sound of the ghosts of children at play.

Listen, listen to the night that walks with dark and brooding feet, all is gone, all has taken flight and the tears of God are in the frozen sleet.

Godless State

It has been reported that when Roosevelt and Churchill told Stalin that the Pope would not like some of the things the Russians proposed, Stalin replied: "And how many divisions did you say the Pope has?"

Stalin will be surprised to find how many divisions there are of those who will not idly see religion and a belief in a Supreme Being driven from the hearts and minds of men. If Russia persists in thrusting war upon the people of the earth to impose a godless police state upon all humanity, she will find that the earth will shake with the tread of countless millions of all creeds who will say with Patrick Henry, "Give me liberty or give me death."

And if men again have to leave their homes and businesses to defeat a ruthless dictatorship, they will preserve not only their own freedom but they will free the Balkan and Baltic enslaved nations, Poland and Austria and the masses of Russians themselves, from the Bolshevist minority that is keeping all civilization in an uproar. Let these men who are doing this thing remember where Hitler, Mussolini and Goebels landed. MONITOR.

Jinnah's Religion

I should like to point out a rather conspicuous misstatement in your editorial note on the Quaid-i-Azam Mohammad Ali Jinnah, the late Governor-General of Pakistan, in your issue of September 13.

The relevant part of your editorial described the Quaid-i-Azam as a Hindu by birth. In fact, not only was the Quaid-i-Azam born a Moslem, but so was his father, and to the best of my knowledge, his grandfather.

Further on, you accused him of certain aberrations from the prescriptions of Islam. Besides your rather deplorably sweeping statements, your remarks produced the impression that the points mentioned by you constituted the essentials of Islam. That, I submit, is totally wrong.

Even though your comparison of him with Hitler was in the nature of comment, I cannot help saying that nothing could have been more off the mark. Even the worst enemies of the Quaid-i-Azam admit that he was a strict constitutionalist. His constitutionalism, very often, was the despair as much of his followers as of his opponents. It is fantastic and far-fetched, therefore, to compare him with Hitler. I wonder where his private army referred to by you was. He, of course, always called a spade a spade. And that often chagrined and upset his political opponents.

"Smearing Scientists"

You are to be congratulated on your September 15 editorial, "Smearing Scientists." This is indeed one manuscript which should be headlined in every periodical in the United States.

What does Thomas or Stripling know about science? They are reminiscent of a child of 5 who always fears that the next door neighbor's child or the boy down the street is going to steal his lollypop.

The same goes for most of the present congressional setup which tolerates and permits the continuance, through appropriations, of a group which so flagrantly violates Article 3 of the Constitution and Amendments Nos. 1, 4 and 5 of the Bill of Rights.

In truth as just a plain ordinary citizen, I would personally feel much safer if the future of my country were placed in the hands of Professor Shapley and the other scientists recently convening in Washington and taken out of the hands completely of the present political setup.

Accountability

Dr. Thomas E. Mattingly, in his September 16 letter conveniently forgot to mention one Republican President when he bemoaned the general welfare under Wilson, Roosevelt and Truman. If Wilson should have been relieved because of illness, if Truman should have been relieved because of failure to cooperate with a Republican Congress—what happened to Harding's name? Nary a mention. Come, come, Dr. Mattingly.

Psychiatry

In answer to Doctor's letter of September 15 on psychiatry, may I submit the following paragraph taken from an editorial from Holland's magazine.

"For the conscientious researcher, interested from the humanitarian stand we have the highest regard, but this line of endeavor has attracted a group of alienists whose services on 'expert testimony' are always available to the highest bidder, which is possibly best explained by the following:

"This situation arises, in all probability, from the fact that in few other professions, if any, can mistakes be glossed over at so little cost to the blunderer. An engineer is subject to check by other experts, and can be discharged; and if his mistake is serious enough, he may be ruined professionally. An editor is subject to the libel laws. But a doctor is accountable to nothing but his own conscience and the purported ethics of the profession . . . but with the intense degree of commercialization that pervades most of medicine today, and with the errors that result constantly from it and paid for by the victims, the public is coming to feel that medical ethics now are more aimed at and designed for the protection of the doctor and his purse." "The Prices You Pay"

Judging from your September 11 editorial, "The Prices You Pay," it seems that The Washington Post has been, at least in part, "taken in" by the specious farm bloc propaganda that a lowering of the very highly inflated farm prices to reasonable levels will bring on a depression.

As a matter of fact, farm prices for the items of the essential cost of living in clothing and food are the starting point of a vicious spiral of inflated wages and prices maintaining today's high living costs. They are the only part of this spiral being maintained almost totally by Government fiat, rather than scarcity, above a reasonable price, at the heavy cost of both the consumer and taxpayer interest of us all, particularly those of us in the sectors of the economy whose incomes have not had a compensatory inflation.

The whole farm parity program is based on the premise that the farmer should be placed on a parity with the rest of the economy. Actually it places the upper income bracket farmer on an inflated level considerably above the level of the second most inflated sector, our production industries and workers. It has done little or nothing for the lower income bracket farmer wherein lies the farm problem.

Due to the increase in productivity made possible by mechanization, better seed strains, fertilizers, insecticides, herbicides, etc., the modernized farmer with large acreages in such highly mechanized crops as wheat, corn, soybeans, rice, fruit, etc., can, for the same labor, grow 5 to 10 times the products he did in the 1909-14 base period of the price index. It becomes pretty high-priced labor when the Government guarantees him 2.2 times the 1909-14 prices for each unit of his product which he can grow for even less money than he did in 1909-14—to be approximate, 11 to 22 times as much cash income for the same labor.

We certainly do have a very serious farm problem in our low-income group of farmers on largely unmechanized farms which are too small and too poor to support a family, estimated by one informed former Farm Security Administration official to comprise about three-fifths of all American farms. Even in the boom year 1944 the lower half of our farmers' incomes were less than $1500.

On the other hand the upper one third of of our farmers own 80 per cent of the land and achieve about 80 per cent of our production; hence this upper third income group which does not need help receives 80 per cent of all farm aid based on either production or acreage, as practically all the farm aid programs, including the present parity program, have been. The farmer in the lower half income bracket received less than $40 from Government benefits in 1944. If we could count up the costs, direct and indirect, we would find that the lower income bracket farmer has paid far more to date in inflated living costs due to the farm parity program than he received in direct benefits.

Rather than paying out $8 to the upper third income farmer to give the lower two thirds $1 it is much better, socially and economically, that we use $3 directly on education, fertilization, mechanization, etc., to raise the productivity of the marginal and submarginal farmer to reasonable competitive-cost levels or to reeducate and relocate him in other occupations if he is in a hopeless situation.

Such programs as the current mechanization of the cotton crop make it imperative that we do this for the excess tenant farmers such mechanization produces, instead of wasting our money making the rich farmer richer and creating a socially undesirable, feudal, monopolistic, agrarian economy similar to that of Czarist Russia, the Mexico of Diaz, and modern Spain. This will be the inevitable result of continuation of present governmental policies, much as our politicians bleed for the underdog farmer.

A basic industry such as farming should also have some protection against the wildest vagaries of the market by use of a stop-loss support price somewhat below the average cost of good modern production. In certain areas subject to feast and famine vagaries of the weather, some sort of insurance program should be set up to level off the cycles. AMERICAN.

The Course Of Empire

THE EVOLUTION OF AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY, by Dexter Perkins. (Oxford University Press; price not indicated.)

Professor Perkins' little book affords as good an introduction as any that I know to a subject that we can now recognize as one of life and death interest to us all. What conclusions are to be drawn from it is another matter; it must be said that the professor is rather dimdent about drawing any morals of his own. The lessons of history, he tells us, are only for the wise, and adds the disquieting truism that "statesmen and peoples are not always endowed with wisdom." The immense and inescapable fact is that, after 160 years of national existence, the United States has emerged as one of two great powers of the earth, the other, of course, being the Soviet Union. The general testimony of history appears to be that in such a situation, unless the powers were separated by tremendous distances, violent collision between them was sooner or later inescapable. The factor of distance, however, is no longer of primary importance, as the conquest of Japan has proved. But neither is the consciousness of pacific purposes, nor knowledge of what war with the weapons made available by physical and bacteriological science may mean for all concerned.

The greater part of Professor Perkins' book is devoted to the successive stages whereby the United States has attained to the position of the greatest world power. The first great factor was of course the Federal Union. One of the most frequently discussed questions concerning foreign policy is the extent to which it is influenced by domestic politics, but relatively little attention is given to the question how far domestic politics are influenced by diplomatic considerations. Yet the difficulties encountered in Paris by Jefferson in attempting to act as the representative of 13 separate sovereignties certainly had much to do with creating among a large portion of his followers a sentiment favorable to the ratification of the Constitution that was formulated in Philadelphia in 1787. Again, the circumstances that attended the Louisiana Purchase in the interest of national security, obliged Jefferson to repudiate his own constitutional doctrine of "strict construction," and to arrogate to himself powers nowhere provided to him. At the same time his opponents, the Federalists, were obliged or induced by the necessities of party politics to make a similar reversal of policy.

The War with Mexico in 1846-47, was attacked by the Northern Whigs, and even more vehemently by the abolitionists, as pure aggression in the interest of extending the slave power. On this point Professor Perkins is inclined to disagree, and he considers that, since the United States possessed the preponderance of power, the Mexicans were very ill-advised not to accept the opportunity of a reasonable settlement when it offered itself. And though he acknowledges that certain circumstances attending the outbreak of the war scarcely "satisfy the scrupulous friend of national honor," he appears generally to approve in the context of the epoch the gospel of Manifest Destiny, rejoicing that it could be accomplished at the price of only one war, for evidently the professor does not count Indians. Anyway, he finds the impulse to the great continental expansion of the first half of the nineteenth century in "a kind of land-hunger that unkind critics might suggest bears some analogy to the forces that set in motion the growth of modern Russia."

Professor Perkins discovers a sort of diastolic and systolic rhythm in American diplomatic history in the alternating moods of belligerency and pacifism. Still, the warlike temper often evaporated quickly as in the case of the Oregon boundary dispute or in the case of President Cleveland's squabble with the British over Venezuela. The isolationist spirit, which dominated the American thought and policy from the Treaty of Ghent to the later decades of the century, appears to have been the product of continental security, prosperity and a high degree of economic self-sufficiency; but it is precisely to these factors, plus the rapid growth of population and to the remarkable managerial genius exhibited by Americans, that the professor attributes the rise of the United States to a position of preeminence in world affairs. The great turning point in American policy came, of course, with the war of 1898. The continental imperialism had raised no such problem of the assimilation of people of alien language and culture. The subsequent treaty with Spain was, therefore, bitterly assailed by men like Senator Hoar and Professor Sumner, who feared that to involve the United States in the power politics of the world was to hasten the extinction of the Republic.

But I gather that Professor Perkins considers it all to have been more or less inevitable. What seems to disturb him most are the comfortable illusions which Americans have carried with them from their comfortable world of isolationism into their new world of power politics, and the handicaps imposed on diplomatic activity by the American constitutional structure. Thus in the current controversy about whether foreign policy should be made by the people or by the President and his advisers, Professor Perkins appears to side with those who say that the people are not well enough informed to make the primary decisions. But he does not go to the length of asserting, as Professor Thomas A. Bailey has done, that in a time of crisis, the statesman may be justified in deceiving his people about the course he means to take, if he has reason to believe they would not approve it.

"Eduard Benes"

Communications To The Editor

I AGREE with your September 10 editorial that "the place of Eduard Benes will be argued unendingly from now on" and I do not expect that we could elucidate all the controversies about this great personality in a few editorials or letters. All I would like to do this time is to introduce some facts and circumstances which seem relevant in our discussion.

As to the problem of Benes' desire "to have common frontiers with Soviet Russia," I do not deny that Benes expressed it explicitly in 1939. It should be known, however, that the statement has been made only one year after Munich. At the time of the crisis in 1938 the only indication of intention to help Czechoslovakia came from Russia, while Poland declared her objection to the transport of Russian armies through her territory.

It is also true that Benes believed that sooner or later Russia would be involved in a war with Germany and expected that she would assume a major role in postwar Europe. I would like, however, to recall that Benes did not go to Russia in 1941 as you state and did not sign any secret agreement with Stalin.

In July, 1941, the Czechoslovak government signed the same kind of agreement with Russia, as Britain had done before ("on mutual aid and alliance in the war against Hitler's Germany"). In 1943 no "new protocol to the 1941 pact" was signed, but a "Soviet-Czechoslovak treaty of friendship, mutual aid and postwar cooperation" was concluded in Moscow during Benes' first visit there. This treaty was by no means secret and both the American and British Governments were informed beforehand about the negotiations.

No question of common frontiers or of Ruthenia was raised at that time and, according to a reliable witness present at the Benes-Stalin meeting who happens to be living now in Washington, Stalin pointed out that there was no reason to discuss the subject as Ruthenia was an integral part of the Czechoslovak Republic. In 1944 the Russians seized the control of this territory, conveniently forgetting the one-year-old assurance. The fait accompli was later ratified. This may be the explanation of the vagueness of Benes' statement on the matter.

AS TO the attitude of Dr. Benes to the Tardieu plan, I am unable to agree with you that Benes' "career is one long demonstration of such a preference" (rather Hitler than the Habsburgs) "if it were forced upon him."

I do not see any use in discussing which course Benes might have taken, had he been confronted with the Hitler-or-the-Habsburg dilemma. The Habsburgs have never become a real alternative in central Europe. After 1918 they commanded in no central European country a sufficient support to make them a rallying point against the German pressure.

But even if assumed that an adequate and acceptable scheme of federation had been at hand in 1932, it must be realized that it could have been put into effect only under auspices of a western determination to overcome the German, Italian and Hungarian opposition (which were the main factors that frustrated the Tardieu plan) and uphold such a federation against their hostility.

Benes and Czechoslovakia—as you could very easily ascertain from his contemporary exposes and declarations—supported the Tardieu plan.

Another question is whether a central European federation would have been a bulwark against Hitler. I am convinced that an alliance between central and western Europe, firm and honored, was the only way of stopping Hitler. I agree with Eva S. Sheldon, whose letter appeared in your paper on September 9, that a Danubian federation would have been unable to resist Germany if left alone, just as France could not resist when she found herself alone.

On the other hand, had France and Britain been ready they could have easily checked Hitler with active support of Poland and the "petite entente." Unfortunately the network of French alliances disintegrated in the 30's as a result of the growing disparity of strength and preparedness for conflict in Germany and the western countries.

ON THE subject of central European federalism, I find your mention of F. Palacky very pertinent. The quotation (correctly: "If Austria did not exist, it would be necessary to create her in the interest of humanity itself.") must, however, be read in the context of his letter to the Frankfurt "Vor-Parliament" of which the sentence is part, and confronted with the opinion he formed later on.

It will appear then that, while wholeheartedly recognizing the need of a strong union of central European peoples, he criticized Austria such as she was in his time for misreading the true basis of her existence; namely, the principle of equal rights for all her peoples. In this respect he stands in line with most of the prominent historians, philosophers and politicians in my country.

I believe that federalism, based on mutual fairness and equality, will find an honest support in a free Czechoslovakia which, you may agree, has done more than its share in promoting not only regional but European and world-wide cooperation of nations.

DR. JURAJ CLAVIK.
Former member of the Czechoslovak cabinet in exile.
Bethesda, Md.

. . . PRESIDENT Benes never visited Russia in 1941. His only visits to that country were those in 1935, when the original treaty of alliance (corresponding to a similar one with France) was concluded; in 1943, when the treaty of friendship, mutual assistance and postwar collaboration (and not merely a "protocol" to the informal London Agreement of 1941) was signed; and in 1945, when the President passed through the USSR returning with his government to the liberated territory of Czechoslovakia.

There was no "secret," or any other agreement concluded with Stalin, and no documents concerning such agreement exist that could have been "smuggled" out; there might have been, of course, quite a few documents that could have been fabricated.

Dr. Benes made no attempt, successful or not, to gain entry to the Tehran conference. The fact that he was near Tehran at the time of the conference was entirely due to the travel arrangements made for his journey to Moscow by the British authorities in December, 1943. It may be remembered that there was a lot of talk at the time of Dr. Benes' difficulties in getting the travel opportunity for his visit to Moscow, so that this journey, planned by the President for July and August, 1943, would be undertaken only as late as in December. Even then Dr. Benes was obliged, due to the weather conditions, to spend an uncomfortable week in a British airdrome somewhere in the Middle East.

Regarding the question of "Ruthenia," I wish to point out the easily ascertainable historical fact that the "Ruthenians," which was only another name for this long-suffering branch of the Ukrainian nation, decided in 1919 to join the Czechoslovakia Republic for the sole reason that the frontiers of the Great Ukraine had receded at that time far to the east. Having no material possibility of bringing about the most natural solution of a merger with the Soviet Ukraine, the Carpathian Ukrainians preferred to join Czechoslovakia to other alternatives; namely, that of joining Poland or remaining in Hungary.

No reasonable Czech or Slovak, with the possible exception of a few Czech vestpocket imperialists, ever considered this as something more than a sort of trusteeship, knowing well that the long-oppressed people of that province would go unanimously to any Ukrainian state as soon as there was a practical opportunity to do so. The merger of the Carpathian Ukraine with the Ukrainian Republic of the USSR became thus self-evident in the moment when the USSR appeared on the Czechoslovak frontier.

DR. VLADIMIR OUTRATA.
Czechoslovak Ambassador.

EDITOR'S NOTE: 1941 was a misprint for 1943, but Dr. Benes started to look to Moscow for an agreement in late 1939 (see his War Memoirs) and started in earnest to achieve that aim in 1941. In 1939 Russia was despoiling Poland with Germany.

a wall, and covered them with rifles.

The bandits, who wore handkerchief masks, told their victims to take off their trousers. Then two of the gunmen took their money, watches and rings. The robbers tore the telephone from the clubhouse wall, and warned the men to wait at least 10 minutes before summoning police.

They then left the building, joined their three confederates outside, entered four cars parked there and left in the direction of Norfolk.

Princess Anne County Police Chief Irvin Mapp, called by the robbery victims, immediately notified Virginia State Police and police of Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Norfolk County. Roadblocks were hurriedly thrown up, but the robbers apparently had escaped from the area.

Princess Anne County police said later that three of the four cars stolen in the Boat House robbery were recovered near Virginia Beach. A fourth car is still missing. Police believe the bandits now are using a car of unknown make bearing Kentucky tags.

Chief Mapp refused to reveal the names of the 40 men who were attending the stag dice-game party. From other sources, however, it was learned that some of them were prominent Norfolk men, attending a private party given by Jimmy Fox of Virginia Beach, owner of the Boat House.

The general lookout flashed early last night for three of the bandits said they might be heading either for Pikesville, Md., or Raleigh, N. C., and were traveling in three cars. No description was given of the four other robbers.

The lookout stated the men were "armed with machine guns and pistols."

Early reports said the robbers took $50,000, then $100,000.

Authorities at two military posts near the beach resort, Fort Story and Oceana Air Force Base, each reported they had no escaped prisoners, AWOL's or men with overstayed leave who might have been involved in the holdups.

Tuition Collection May Be Left to Municipal Heads

The District Board of Education is expected to consider a new plan for collecting tuition bills from out-of-town students when it meets September 29.

The plan is being worked out by a group of school officials headed by Adelbert W. Heinmiller, who is in charge of the business administrative office at board headquarters.

The plan calls for turning the collection job over to the District Commissioners, who would be given a list of pupils owing tuition, and then could bill the parents for the amount due. When a tuition bill remained unpaid, the Commissioners would notify the appropriate school authorities, who would place the affected student under suspension until settlement.

Guard aircraft droned overhead. A bloodhound, property of a nearby resident, was also pressed into service.

Because some pine needles were intermingled with the blood found in the rear of the car, the probers concentrated on scattered patches of pine growth.

Stirred by the mystery, the Glen Burnie Improvement Association announced an offer of $1000 reward in connection with the case. A spokesman said the nature of the reward would be clarified when the fate of the couple became known.

Chief Souers himself commented: "Until we find a body, we have [illegible] to go on."

[illegible]n, a mail clerk, lived at 11[illegible] 4th ave., Glen B[illegible]ie. Miss Kline lived at 203 2d ave. She was employed as a secretary by a Baltimore corporation.

Police said the search would be continued today.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Nary a Goose-Pimple

DEXTER, Iowa.—All the elements in Harry S. Truman's well-nigh hopeless political problem were neatly, picturesquely summed up at the formal opening of his campaign, here among the yellow fields of ripened corn. The Truman strategy is to make his audiences' flesh creep with talk of the "gluttons of privilege" who inhabit Wall Street.

But in the first place, the obviously decent, moderate and flatly unemotional President is almost comically miscast in the old role of William Jennings Bryan. And then his audiences are so prosperous, well-fed and optimistic that if he dressed up as a blood-boltered ghost, and did the authentic dance of death upon the platform, he would still fail to raise a single goose-pimple.

The scene, much more than what the President said, was in truth the real political story here. The setting was the prosperous Iowa farm of Mrs. T. R. Agg, widow of the dean of the Iowa State College. The fields of the place are rich, the farm has been much improved by concrete dams and terraces for erosion control, plantings of trees to hold water on the gentle slopes, and other inventions of the devilish New Deal, wickedly aided by the Federal Treasury. Here nearly 90,000 people gathered, to witness the annual national plowing contest, to look over Mrs. Agg's experiments in progressive farming, and to enjoy something like a vast county fair.

THE CROWD ITSELF was overwhelming. It seemed to trample down the farm, although Frank Sommers, Mrs. Agg's weather-beaten farm manager, remarked cheerfully, "A few rains, a couple of freezes and some snow, and it'll all be back the same next summer."

Yet the looks of the people were still more impressive than their numbers. In this part of the country, people have begun to achieve a sort of homogeneity that is not seen elsewhere in America, where the melting pot's work is not done. They all have the same wiry, energetic good health. Moreover, they all look prosperous. In one field outside the impromptu fair grounds, over 50 bright red, blue or yellow flying farmers' aircraft were lined up. And while only a tiny percentage were as rich as this, and none at all pretended to be anything but farmers, the whole crowd wore an air of comfortably, homely well-being.

Such were the people whom the President sought to arouse against his favorite Republican "gluttons of privilege." In a sense, he had a good case. He spoke nothing but the truth when he reminded his listeners that by the close of the Hoover Administration, much of the State was owned by Eastern insurance companies—the actual figure was above 40 per cent. He spoke the truth also when he claimed for the Democrats much credit for agricultural progress—Mrs. Agg's dams and terraces testified to that. And he was even truthful when he spoke of the Republican Eightieth Congress's responsiveness to big business lobbyists—such episodes as the attempted raid on the farm cooperatives cannot be laughed off.

Yet his 70 per cent Republican audience listened to him with the respect and interest they would accord any decent President of the United States, but without a quiver of emotion even when he recalled the terrible times of the early '30s. In the early '30s, the mood of Iowa was almost revolutionary. But now the President's strong talk utterly failed to re-create that mood. They applauded mildly when he showed the curious, small man's spunk, which is the distinguishing mark of his campaigning. They laughed when he used one of his earthy expressions. They clapped him politely at the close. And that was all.

IF APPEARANCES are at all trustworthy, the President's failure to arouse any more response than this dooms in advance his whole doughty effort. It does no good to go through all the grim campaigning ritual—to rise at 5 a. m., for example, as he did this morning to meet the first station platform crowd. If the people only come to see the President, and take little notice of what he says, their votes are not to be wooed.

On the other hand, in these crowds is also a warning for the Republicans. It may be that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey does not wish to turn the political clock back. But there are plenty of his partisan comrades in arms who have different views. And if the clock is turned back—if these people should ever be deprived of their well-being and dams, their prosperity and terraces, then will be the time to watch out. Because President Truman lacks the queer electric quality of leadership that makes people stand on their hind legs and cheer, this fact is in grave danger of being forgotten. Yet it may be written down for future remembrance.

One on the Aisle—

Rented Uniform HonoredMarshall

By Richard L. Coe

STATESMEN AND SHOWMEN—Mental notes of the Variety Clubs' dinner honoring Secretary of State Marshall with its annual Humanitarian Award:

The busy statesman, already, Deo Volente, in Paris, had two good reasons for taking time out from his busy pre-Assembly schedule to receive the Variety Clubs' award which previously had gone to two other Secretaries of State . . . In meeting the showmen he reached a potent group of the Nation's opinion formers, which was practical . . . His second reason was more romantic and one people are likely to forget: Mrs. Marshall was an actress before her marriage. . . . As Katherine Tupper she toured this country and England as leading lady in Shakespearean roles to Richard Mansfield and Sir Frank Benson.

AUDIE MURPHY, the war's most decorated soldier, was determined to follow half-forgotten protocol by wearing his uniform in the presence of the former general on whose right he was seated. . . . But even though he's under contract to Paul Short and is being backed by the mighty Selznick, the young actor isn't up to his ears in money and you know how those officer uniforms cost . . . So, it was in a hired suit and borrowed GI socks that Audie sat next to the former Chief of Staff . . . Though he's a slight guy, youthful Audie had outgrown his old outfit, which wasn't half as classy as the one he's been able to rent . . . But the decorations were his own.

RED SKELTON trying out his first gag, and sweating over it, on a sixth-floor corridor: "It's wonderful to come from Hollywood to Washington without a subpena." . . . With Red and his russet-thatched wife was his script writer Edna Borzage, to whom he was married in the days when he held-over, week after week, on the Earle stage.

LLOYD NOLAN, who, with Murphy, will star in the Variety Clubs picture, "Bad Boy," talks hopefully of an upswing on the Hollywood financial front. . . . "Things are still pretty tight, but those Texas millionaires that are putting some of their oil money into pictures may make a big difference soon. Money in pictures is a funny thing. A lot of investors are all arty with no sense, the others are all sense and no art. But the Texas moneybags are likely to dovetail the two."

THE MARINE BAND, trooping the colors, still strikes most banquet-goers as the most dramatic of the service bands . . . Elder Statesman Bernard Baruch, the earliest arrival (an hour early, to be exact), chatting in the corridor with the second earliest arrival, Milton Starr, the Southern theater chain owner who's just been sued for a million dollars: "Touch Me," says Milton . . . First ovation for headtablers went to the Irish Minister, Sean Nunan, who knows that in the theater world the mere mention of Ireland is the sure way to applause . . . Only boos of the evening, type jovial, to General Hershey, the greetings king.

EDDIE PEABODY, who doubled from the Capitol stage, should explain how a guy who's been entertaining as long as First Nighter Melvin Viner can remember, still looks to be in his 20s . . . Viner, the husky Arcade Laundryman, who'll be missing his A-1 seat at the National openings, is frankly envious of the banjoman and wonders how he does it . . . As does Double Chin Coe.

REAR ADMIRAL Glenn B. Davis, who will be screening Dick Byrd's Navy film on Anartica, "The Secret Land," Tuesday night aboard an LST, getting a pre-preview feel of the show world and retiring early to mull over it . . . Gene Archer, who usually perks up at you from the Capitol orchestra pit, looking far slimmer than usual, having fun with "It Ain't Necessarily So" . . . The pocket bulge probably being snapshots of the three Archer youngsters . . . Busy Gene Ford murmuring light cues at one end of the Presidential Room one minute and seating an old friend at another the next.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S Father Hartke, just back from a Wisconsin holiday, doesn't know who'll play "King Lear," which Basil Langton will produce for the group . . . "We're choosing him via the good old tryout method this week," he vows . . . Another George Marshall—who but the Redskins'—answers a question about Mrs. George Marshall, who also was an actress, Corinne Griffith . . . "Corinne will be back next week," says he . . . The town's most obdurate on-the-wagon critic carrying a single red rose and looking as pixilated as if he'd just fallen off . . . But, like Beatrice Lillie's yodeling goldfish, he hadn't.

NOT OUTLAWED: Jane Russell, whose celebrated debut in "The Outlaw" never did make F street, is still a sweater girl and you'll be seeing her downtown soon in Paramount's Western take-off, "The Paleface," with Bob Hope in the title role

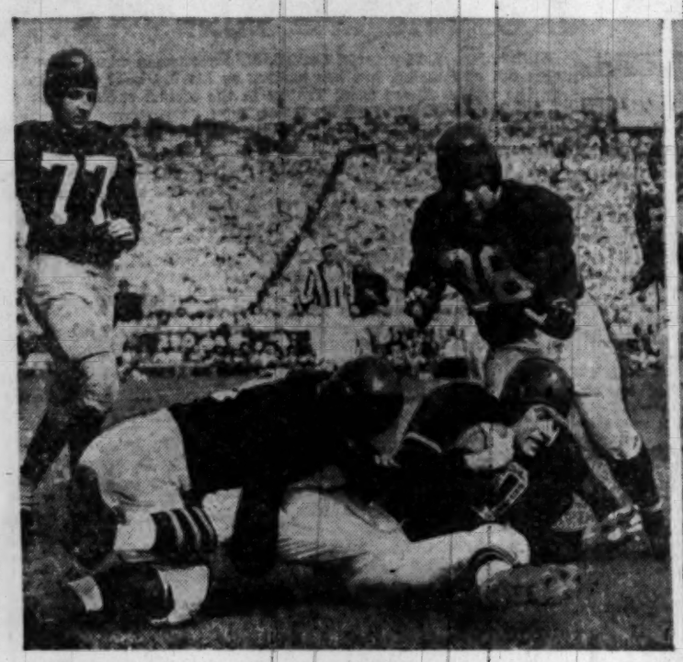
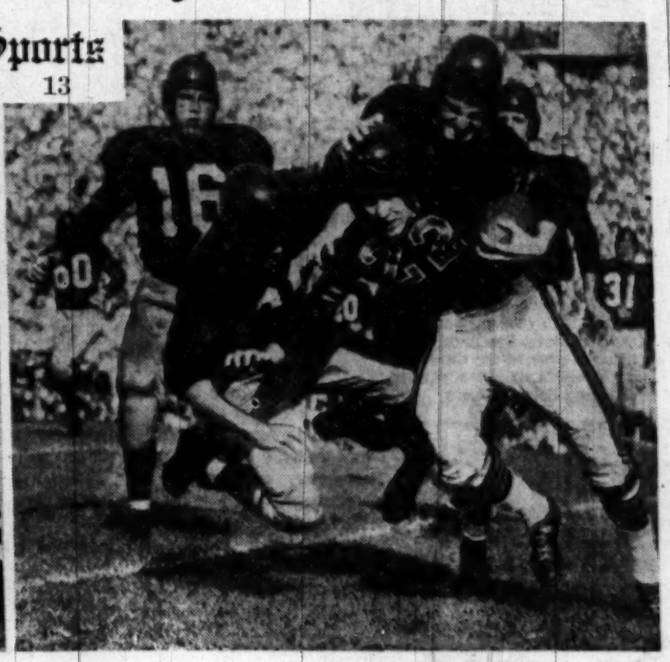
'Skins Bow in Last Minute, 17-14, on Field Goal by Bears' Rookie

The Washington Post Sports
Monday, September 20, 1948 13



A BEAR GOES DOWN—Noah Mullins, Chicago Bear back, goes down from a leg grab being administered by Redskin End Hugh Taylor in second quarter of yesterday's Bear-Washington Redskins game at Baltimore. That number 77 is 'Skin Tommy Mont and coming in with a little helpful shove is Redskin End Henry Harris (36). The Bears won in final minute of game, 17-14

NEARING THE GOAL — Redskin Jimmy Castiglia is stopped inches from a touchdown in the fourth quarter on the fourth of five line smashes at the goal line. Dick Poillon, scored the Skins' second touchdown on the fifth try. That's Big Bad Bear George McAfee (5) just looking on, and number 31 is Redskin Clyde Erhardt. A Sam Baugh to Poillon pass set up the score



By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

THE SKINS STOP A TEXAN—Chicago Bear Bobby Layne, late of Texas University, runs into Redskin Joe Tereshinski (lower left) after romping 10 yards around end in the fourth quarter of the game. Making with the face in the back is Redskin Tackle Henry Harris. John Steber (16), Redskin guard is coming in to help, but Layne is already on his way down

Tigers Bump Leaders in Double Bill, 4-3 and 8-6

Detroit, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers handed the Boston Red Sox two costly defeats today by winning the first game of a doubleheader, 4 to 3 in 12 innings, and the second, 8-6.

The double loss cut Boston's edge to a half game over Cleveland, which won twice to take over second place from the Yanks.

The second game was called at the end of the eighth on account of darkness.

In the opener Frank (Stubby) Overmire, fourth Tiger pitcher, singled home the winning run with two out in the twelfth after Paul Campbell and Johnny Lipon also had singled. Ted Williams' twenty-fourth home run tied the score after two were out in the ninth to send it into overtime.

Ellis Kinder, starting Boston pitcher, had a 2-1 lead on a three-hit pitching job going into the eighth, when Dick Wakefield slammed a two-run pinch homer that put Detroit in front, 3-2.

Then Williams homered in the ninth off Dizzy Trout to tie the score after two were out.

Boston scored three runs in the opening inning of the nightcap but Detroit got one in the second and jammed five more across in a big fourth inning to lead 6-3.

Stan Spence' three-run homer, scoring Vern Stephens who had singled and Bobby Doerr who had walked, knotted it at six-all in the fifth.

Wakefield's second home run of the day settled the nightcap in the Tiger seventh at the expense of Dave (Boo) Ferriss.

Braves Beat Reds, 4-2, for 6th in Row

Boston, Sept. 19 (AP).—Boston's Braves protected their lead in the fast-wanning National League pennant fight today by coming from behind to clip the Cincinnati Reds 4-2 before a paid crowd of 19,489. It was the sixth victory in a row for the league leaders, who now have won 12 of their last 13 games.

The Braves maintained their six-game bulge over the second place Brooklyn Dodgers, who defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-1.

Seven more victories would virtually asure the Tribe of their first pennant in 34 years.

Today's victory went to veteran Lefthander Clyde Shoun, who entered the game in the eighth after the Braves had tied it in the seventh with a one-run rally which was sparked by an Eddie Stanky-pinch single.

Stanky appeared in his first game since July 8 when he suffered a broken right ankle in a third-base collision with Bruce Edwards in Brooklyn.

Canisius Routs St. Francis, 61-0

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 19 (AP).—The Goldens Griffins from Canisius celebrated the return of Jimmy Wilson as head coach after five years' absence today by walloping St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., 61-0 in Buffalo's College football inaugural.

Howie Willis, a 155-pound halfback, led the attack, scoring twice, passing for a third touchdown and booting six conversions.

Washington Blows 7-Point Lead Twice

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Municipal Stadium, Baltimore, Sept. 19.—A field goal 50 seconds before the end of the game made the big difference here today as the crippled Washington Redskins, again underdogs in their meeting with the Chicago Bears, went down to a 17-14 defeat.

While a paid crowd of 20,456 watched the fourth annual Variety Club benefit, Washington's National Football League hopefuls wound up their exhibition season with an excellent performance.

They held a seven-point advantage twice, once as late as midway of the fourth period. In the end it was a 16-yard three-pointer by Fred Venturelli, a placement expert picked up from the sand lots, who accounted for the 'Skins' third preseason loss in a row.

While four of their first-line backs rode the bench, the Redskins again depended mostly on Sammy Baugh on offense and the slinger came through. He tossed 21 yards to Hugh Taylor for the game's first touchdown in the opening frame, and it was his passes, plus a lot of Bear roughness, that led to the 'Skins second touchdown in the final period.

Meanwhile the Bears were finding themselves with more brilliant backs than they knew what to do with. All-America's Johnny Lujack and Bobby Layne got to play a lot, and so did veteran Sid Luckman, but Chicago needed a couple of freak plays to keep even in touchdowns.

The first was a flat pass that Jim Castiglia overran and Stuart Clarkson grabbed for an unhindered 38-yard touchdown dash in the middle of the second quarter.

The second, tying the count at 14-14 in the fourth, came after All-America George Connors of Notre Dame recovered a Redskin handoff fumble. Joe Osmanski broke straight through center on the Bears' first play thereafter and raced 40 yards into the end zone.

It was a crazy game to watch—during the second half, at least. Both teams were using their rookies extensively and concentrating on defense in the first half and the count was a rather dull 7-7 at half time.

But then Al Lawler got into action. He is a University of Texas sprint man playing his first year with the Bears. He put on one of the fanciest displays of running you ever saw—and it did practically no good whatever.

Lawler's first act was to take Dick Poillon's punt, one of many brilliant ones, on his own 30 early in the third quarter. He was romping by the time he'd gone 55 yards and reached the 'Skins 15. But there he decided to switch the ball from one arm to the other. He dropped the ball and big Al Damao was on it immediately, ending the threat.

The fourth period was half over when Lawler got another chance. J. R. Boone took Poillon's punt this time, lateralled to Lawler on the Bear 8, and after an 89-yard sprint Lawler was still scoreless.

This time Dan Sandifer, Redskin rookie from L. S. U., came up from behind to pull the Texan down on the Redskin three. The whole play, however, was cancelled when the Bears were charged with both holding and clipping at the same time.

Finally Lawler got in a lick that meant something. Only 10 minutes of play were left when he romped from his 24 to the Bear 43 with a punt. That launched the Bear push that fizzled on the 10 but resulted in Venturelli's game-winning field goal.

Roughness, which caused eight penalties on the Bears, had the stands howling anad the Bears roaring mad before Washington pushed over its second six-pointer. Bob Nussbaumer had intercepted a Luckman pass and zigzagged to midfield from where a 'Skin drive carried to the Bear eight.

Biggest help during that push

Yanks Split Twin Bill, Drop to 3d

St. Louis, Sept. 19 (AP).—The New York Yankees gained a game's length on the league-leading Boston Red Sox but dropped to third place as they split a double-header with the St. Louis Browns today.

The Yanks took the nightcap 9 to 6 after dropping the opener 8 to 6 before 12,751 fans.

Joe DiMaggio set the pace in the second contest, driving in four runs with two homers, one in the first inning and the other in the third.

They were his thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth home runs respectively and brought to 145 his runs batted in this season.

Home runs featured the first game also with Tommy Henrich, Jerry Priddy and Al Zarilla each clubbing one.

Nats End Loss Streak At 18 With Twin Win

Chicago, Sept. 19.—The unhappy Nats completed a successful three-point landing against the White Sox here today in smashing an 18-game losing streak:

1. They won the first game, 10-7, to wind up the losing streak two shy of the American League's all-time high of 20 consecutive losses.
2. They used a six-run first frame to breeze to an 8-6 victory in the second, halted by darkness after six innings.
3. The two-game winning streak, the Nats first twin bill sweep since May 29, just about cemented seventh place with a three-length edge over the cellar- chained Chicagoans, who used to call the Griffs their favorite cousins.

Jake Early and Eddie Yost, a couple of lightweight hitters, used their bat to overcome the shortcomings of Washington pitching in the opener. They collected three hits apiece, each swatting their first home runs of the season in the course of the first Nats' success since they last encountered the groggy Chicagoans, September 1 in Washington.

Early, a .201 swatter going into the opener, followed his No. 1 round tripper with successive singles to score three runs and drive in the same number.

Yost, who was resting at a .237 level in the hit parade, warmed up with two singles before he concluded scoring in the ninth inning with a blast into the left-field lower deck with the bases empty.

Milo Pitches in Both Games

Milo Candini was the busiest of Joe Kuhel's pitchers. The big Italian functioned in both games and each time turned in a creditable showing. This was especially true in the second game when Milo checked the White Sox in order to protect a two-run edge before Plate Umpire Bill Grieve called it quits.

Although darkness was approaching rapidly, Grieve had another good reason for wanting to get it over. During the six-run romp in the first inning Don Kolloway winged Grieve with a wild throw to further slow up proceedings.

It hit the gray-haired gent in blue on the left elbow as Mickey Vernon slid across the plate. Vernon hurried to the dugout but Grieve needed time for repairs supplied by George Lentz, the Nats' muscle expert.

Candini Scores 'Em

Then the game continued with Yost driving in Sherry Robertson with Washington's seventh run in the second. Ed Stewart picked up a cheap RBI in the last round, Coan scoring on his infield force play hopper.

The White Sox, meanwhile, got a bit frisky with Thompson and Walt Masterson with a two-run first, a run in the third and a

Potomac Wins 14th and Title

Potomac won its fourteenth straight game and clinched the Montgomery County Baseball League pennant yesterday by defeating Sandy Spring on the Potomic diamond. The score was 9-2.

Pepco Barry got the big hit in the six-run Potomac splurge in the second inning, a four-bagger with the bases loaded. Reds Geigerich delivered two more homers for Potomac, both with no one on, in the second and fourth innings.

Rockville helped Potomac along the pennant trail with a 6-5 victory over the second-place Colesville nine at Rockville. Rather, Rockville's pitcher, Jack Mahon, did it, clouting a game-winning homer in the bottom of the ninth with two away. Mahon hit another homer in the second with one on.

With only a few games left in the regular season, the first four teams are already looking ahead to the playoff which begins on October 3.

Anacostia Looms as Top-Flight Contender; Fast Bethesda-Chevy Chase Team Shaping Up

Barons Gird Against 4 Grid Foes Who Beat Them in 1947

Four F's beware! Bethesda-Chevy Chase High's Barons are on the warpath.

The four F's confronting the Barons have nothing to do with the draft.

They are, in this case, Fairfax, Falls Church, Frederick, Md., and Friends Highs, the four major obstacles in the path of Bethesda's first undefeated season.

Fairfax, Falls Church and Friends ruined Bethesda's bid last season with one touchdown victory. BCC won its other six games.

This year, Coach Ray Fehrman has built a machine, three deep in the backfield, and light and fast in the line to go after the troublesome four F's and National Training School, Richard Montgomery of Rockville and Montgomery-Blair.

Most promising of his backs is Jack O'Neill, a tenth-grader, younger brother of Pat O'Neill, former Wilson High all-around athlete. A "natural," Jack passes, runs and kicks, and is willing and aggressive.

The three wingbacks in contention are Buddy Ware, Jim McAuliffe and Doug Sawyer. Herb Spain, John Van Wagner and Don Schneider are waging a hot battle for the tailback job. In the competition for the blocking-back job are Tom Dioiosa, Lew Deschler and Bill Fairlamb.

Dick Beckwith, a crackerjack pass-catcher, is back from last year's team to anchor down one of the end positions. At the other flank is Wally Young. The center is Art Crago. Three guards are in the running for starting berths, Tod DeBinder, Charlie Schawobe and Dave Rice.

John Tancil, the heaviest lineman on the team at 180, has locked up one tackle position. John Farrar and Miley Mathis are fighting it out for the other tackle.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase dedicates its new stadium and one-fifth-mile track against Fairfax October 8. The field is sodded, but has no seats or lights yet. However, temporary seats will be placed on the inclines of the natural bowl for the game.

Tribe Well-Balanced Club Despite Loss of 2 Key Men

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Since the completion of last interhigh football season, Anacostia's Indians have been touted as the 1948 team to beat.

It's a rating which Coach Kermit (Zuzu) Stewart does not now relish.

Last November, Anacostia finished in third place and had most of its team returning.

However, since then, Stewart's Tribe has lost its best back and one of its best linemen.

Matias (Chow) Echaves, 180-pound version of Lu Gambino, broke a few ribs and an arm in an automobile accident the day before Anacostia opened practice. A few weeks before that, Roland Dixon, 195-pound guard, announced that he was transferring to Bullis to prep for the Naval Academy.

Without these two, Anacostia no longer figures as a lop-sided favorite to cop the first championship in its 11-year history.

However, it is a well-balanced squad, that figures to be a top-flight contender with Central, Eastern, Coolidge and perhaps Tech.

Stewart has drafted his stellar end, Jim Faulkner, to the backfield duties of Echaves, and while Jim hasn't the speed of the Filipino star, he has power and a good passing arm. Quarterback Bob Mitchell and Halfback Tommy Holmes give speed to the secondary. Pat Kober rounds out the backfield at full.

Anacostia's compact line has no one smaller than 175-pounder Peewee Morris, who plays a rugged center. The two biggest boys are Bill Neal, tackle, and Eddie Burge, end, who scale 190 each.

The rest of the line consists of Bob Allwine and Billy James at the guards Ted Gritton at tackle. All are veterans, and may give Anacostia the best line protection of any team in the series.

The 'Indians are strong in reserves, too. Buddy Kelley, a 15-year-old 217-pound tackle just out of Kramer Junior High, shows fine promise. So does another tackle, Ray James. To spell Allwine and Bill James at the guards, Stewart can call on Bud Sydnor and Joe Borras and have no misgivings.

Pirates Drop Doubleheader To Phillies

Philadelphia, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates all but dropped out of the National League pennant race today when they lost a doubleheader to the Philadelphia Phillies and fell eight games back of the pace setting Boston Braves. The Phils won the free-hitting opener 9-6 and took the nightcap 5-3 as Schoolboy Rowe hurled seven-hit ball and parked his first homer of the year in the left field stands.

The twin defeat ran the Pirates' losing streak to four straight games while the victories tightened the Phillies hold on sixth place.

Cards Beat Steelers, 35-14

Chicago, Sept. 19 (AP).—Jerry "Scat" Davis, Chicago Cardinals' explosive rookie halfback, flashed 76 and 53 yards today to help give the National Football League champions a 35-14 exhibition triumph over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Cardinals scored twice in the first period, Paul Christman pitching 15 yards to Frank Liebel for the first touchdown and Charlie Trippi smashing 11 yards off tackle for the second.

The Steelers tallied at the outset of the second quarter on an 82 yard drive. The payoff was a 60-yard forward-lateral pass play. Joe Gasparella tossed 18 to Val Jansante who lateralled to Elbie Nickel.

The Cardinals followed this up with two quick markers. Vic Schwall broke off left guard for a 31 yard touchdown romp and Davis scamper l 76 with a punt return.

Gonzales Moreles' eight yard pass to Val Jansante gave the Steelers their second counter in the third period while the Cardinals went scoreless.

Rice Beats Potter In Vets Net Final

Austin Rice defeated Jack Potter, 6—4, 6—1, yesterday in the finals of the men's singles in the District Veterans tennis championships at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Rice had to rally to take the first set as Potter led, 4 to 2. Nine straight games gave him the edge.

Sturgess and Brough Beaten in Finals

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Capping one of the most sensational rises in tennis history, Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles swept South African Eric Sturgess off the courts today to win the National Amateur Championship in straight sets, 6—2, 6—3, 14—12.

The 20-year-old Californian—ranked only eighth when the Nationals started—overpowered the stylish Sturgess shortly after Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont of Wilmington, Del., won over Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, 4—6, 6—4, 15—13, for the women's title.

Gonzales' triumph was one of the most amazing success stories in the tennis annals, and was applauded loudly by 10,000 shower-soaked fans.

The tawny-skinned Mexican lad, often in trouble with the net fathers because of his dislike of school, had overcome favored Frankie Parker and Jaroslav Drobny, Czech Davis cupper, to reach the finals.

Sturgess, 28-year-old former pilot who paid his own way to this country to compete, was regarded as a tough opponent. He had ousted Davis cupper Bill Talbert and rough little Herbie Flam with the finest baseline marksmanship possible. But the scar-faced Pancho was not to be denied.

Laughing, clowning and having the time of his life, he simply overpowered the lithe Sturgess with a searing service and a well-rounded attack which had everything. And when darkness threatened to cause postponement of the match, Pancho finally charged in and ended the long-distance third set.

Gonzales blew through Sturgess easily in the first set, losing service once on carelessness at the net but cracking the accurate Afrikander's delivery three times as he showed him every shot in the book.

Sturgess won the opening point on his service but that was all as Gonzales played the foreigner's pet game and outsteadied him from the base line.

That big service won two games for Gonzales as he took a 3-1 lead and then cracked Sturgess again with rifle-like placements. Playing almost evausually Gonzeles blew his own service in the sixth game with net errors but broke Sturgess right back with cross court placements, running it out for a 6-2 set win in 17 minutes.

In the second set both held service twice and then Gonzales broke through for a 3—2 lead with volley placements and net errors by the Agrican. Gonzales held service at love to go 4—2, one point a cut shot when he was on his knees, and then cracked Sturgess again to win the set at 6—3 with an amazing assortment of lobs, placements and dropshots. The set took only 25 minutes, despite long back-court exchanges.

But the third set was a long-winded dilly. Each broke through the other twice in early games and Pancho, in full control all the way, tossed away two match points, in the twelfth game. It wasn't until the officials decided that only one more game could be played before postponing the match because of darkness that he charged the net for placements which snapped Sturgess' serve and closed it out at 14—12.

Fighting off one match point in the twelfth game of the marathon third set, Mrs. Dupont finally crashed through to victory after twice being runner-up. In 1944 she faded in the finals to Pauline Betz and last year she lost to Miss Brough, her closest friend and six-time partner in winning the women's national doubles crown.

This time a family tragedy almost caused her withdrawal, when her father, St. Lawrence Osborne, was killed Friday in San Francisco in an auto accident. But her mother insisted she finish out the tournament and 10,000 wet but sympathetic fans cheered her to a long-sought triumph.

'Skins Lose In Final Minutes, 17-14

was Poillon's catch of a Baugh toss on his finger-tips and while running backward. It was good for 23 yards and it irked the Bears.

Poillon Goes Over

Bulldog Turner flattened Tom Farmer after one play and the last eight yards were cut to four. Noah Mullin flattened Poillon after a play and the four became two. Finally the Bears got themselves offside, leaving a single yard to go. Castiglia hit the line twice before Poillon finally made it over.

The Baugh-to-Taylor aerial that opened scoring was Taylor's first play of the game and a beautifully simple thing. Taylor later left the game with a damaged arm but first reports were that it was nothing serious.

With Harry Gilmer idle, Tommy Mont replaced Baugh and was almost as much responsible for the good showing as the old master. Slopeshouldered Tommy intercepted two Bear passes, called a good game at quarterback and proved highly effective on pass defense.

Baugh and Mott combined to complete 11 of their 20 passing attempts while the three L's of Chicago—Luckman, Lujack and Layne—clicked on only 5 out of 20.

Off their showing against a Bear team that has won four out of five exhibitions, including a victory over the Steelers, you can expect Washington to hold its own in next Sunday's league opener against Pittsburgh at Griffith Stadium.

The Redskins might really have something.

Mexican League Reported Folded

Mexico City, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Mexican Baseball League, built with the fortune of millionaire sportsman Jorge Pasquel, folded up today because of player desertions and money losses, a high league official said.

The official, who declined the use of his name, said the league was unable to make ends meet despite its reduction from eight to four teams. All games recently have been played here where there are more fans.

Other league officials declined to confirm or deny that the league had folded up. However, no further games are scheduled.

The league ananounced three teams made up of a combination of players from the four teams will play a series.

Some of our strips are very comic. Some of our gals are strictly from the funnypapers. Some could have stepped from a Ziegfeld chorus. One did (in 1915!) The whacky strips, quips and dripps add up to the world's worst show, world's best time. Air-Conditioned.

Operation Gives Hearing to Girl, 9

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Sept. 19.—A 9-year-old girl, deaf since birth, has been given normal hearing through surgery at the Morgan County Memorial Hospital here.

Dr. G. C. Kirk said today that in the course of a tonsilectomy, he noticed that the normal passage between the mouth and pharynx leading to the nose, was closed. He cut away the tissues to make an opening large enough to insert a finger. When the child, who was not identified, came from under the ether she said, "I am not deaf any more."

Latest tests of her hearing determined it was normal. Dr. Kirk said he had never seen or heard of such a deformity—apparently congenital. He referred the case to ear, nose and throat specialists. He reported they declared it a phenomenon new to them, but could readily understand that opening the passage would cure the deafness by giving the sound waves free passage and permitting the tympanic membrane to vibrate.

Dr. Kirk said he probably will report the case to the American Medical Society.

"Blighted Area"

4313 Cases Of Syphilis Here in '47

The Nation's Capital is among those areas in the Nation blighted by syphilis, the District bureau of venereal diseases revealed yesterday.

A total of 4313 cases was reported here in 1947, the bureau said.

Figures compiled from Army statistics showed that the District is in the "VD belt" of second highest concentration. This belt stretches from Arizona and Texas across Arkansas, Alabama, Tennessee, North Carolina, Kentucky, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District.

Greatest Concentration

According to the bureau the greatest concentration is in the area embracing, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia and South Carolina.

The bureau cited as factors contributing to the incidence of the disease here, (1) transient population presenting more opportunities for transmission of infection; (2) urban population; (3) slum areas, and congestion in residential areas.

Syphilis, the figures show, ranked second among all communicable diseases reported to the District Health Department last year. Gonorrhea was in first place. Ranking third was tuberculosis, with half as many cases as syphilis.

The District Health Department and the United States Public Health Service are jointly conducting a campaign to ombat venereal diseases here. The war against syphilis is the second phase of the campaign opened with an anti-gonorrhea campaign in July of this year.

The District Health Department's Bureau of Venereal Disease has stresed in both phases of the campaign the need for cooperation by the public in arranging for blood tests. According to the departmen's spokesmen, the blood tests are of prime importance in lowering the disease rate.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

ECA Loyalty Rule Called 'Ridiculous' In Its Strictness

Here are some interesting statistics on Government personnel: An average of 100 Federal workers die every day; 30 others are retired each day because of disabilities, and 1400 new people are hired daily to replace those who die, retire or resign.

In Government is one person who has had 59 years of service. This employe, of course, could retire today on the maximum pension. However, he has his eye fixed on the future—he says he's waiting on Congress to vote a larger death benefit before he quits.

The Government during this calendar year will hire more than 500,000 people merely to fill the jobs of those who leave its service for a variety of reasons—normal turnover. At the same time tens of thousands are making a career in Uncle Sam's work. For example:

There are 214 employes who have 50 or more years of service; more than 25,000 have had more than 35 years of service, and more than 60,000 have had 30 or more years of service.

In the Civil Service retirement fund is more than 2.5 billion dollars—all invested in United States bonds. The employes have contributed 1.4 billion dollars and the Government's share has been 1.6 billion dollars. About 500 million dollars has been paid out in benefits to retired people.

Yes; we have a Big Government, and it will continue to be big.

ECA: This new agency—the economic Cooperation Administration—has the toughest employe loyalty standards of any Federal agency. The law requires a thorough-going FBI inquiry of all of its employes, and it also requires top ECA officials to "certify" that each employe is loyal after he has been on the job for 60 days.

The ECA general counsel has ruled that no one can be employed by ECA if he has ever at any time been a member of any group that is listed as subversive by the Attorney General. Several able and qualified people have been denied employment at ECA, for example, because they were unfortunate enough to join the Washington Bookshop to get books and records at a discount. That was their crime.

The ruling is ridiculous in view of these three important facts:

1. That the Civil Service loyalty review board uses the Attorney General's list as a "guide" only and not as concrete evidence that all of the members and former members of the blacklisted organizations are disloyal;

2. That at least one and perhaps several other me...bers of ECA's top advisory board would be ineligible to hold a CAF-2 clerical job in the agency under its rigid loyalty standards, and finally,

3. That people like Louis Bu- Elizabeth Bentley—former Comdenz, Whittaker Chambers and munists whose word is being relied on by congressional committees—would also be ineligible to hold ECA jobs.

In a word, the ECA loyalty standards reflect no element of the Christian teaching to forgive and forget. They are based on the narrow and blind theory that once a sinner always a sinner.

AEC: Eric Nicol will resign soon as personnel director of the Atomic Energy Commission. He will return to private industry. Fletcher Waller may be moved back into the hot spot. He's now in the general manager's office. The commission is concerned over the sagging morale of its vital scientists.

CIVIL SERVICE: Dr. Frederick M. Davenport, the 82-year-old chairman of the Federal Personnel Council, is still the odds-on bet to be appointed to the GOP vacancy on the Civil Service Commission. However, opposition has developed to his proposed appointment.

Insiders say that Davenport was sounded out on the job. Though reluctant to accept, he's reported to have agreed to take it if certain conditions were met. Davenport is a former GOP member of Congress from New York.

EXAMS: The Civil Service Commission will open exams for metallurgists to pay from $3727 to $6235 to start, and for radar trainees and instructors t opay from $2974 to $7432.

GPO: The pinters at the Government Printing Office are making ready to request at least a 10 per cent increase in pay. On wage scales, the GPO usually follows the local commercial establishments. Several days ago the 51 commercial plants agreed to an 11 per cent incease to $2.36 a hour. GPO pays its printers $2.12.

2 Area Men Die in Auto Accidents In Virginia

Robert Humphrey, Of Falls Church, And Nelson Davis, Of D. C., Victims

Two District area residents were killed in separate weekend highway accidents.

Robert Lawrence Humphrey, 30, of 101 W. Cameron rd., Falls Church, Va., was killed about 6 a. m. yesterday when his car and trailer collided on Route 211 near Marrifield, Va.

Nelson Davis, 42, who was killed before midnight Saturday when his station wagon hurtled off a mountain road 12 miles east of Romney, W. Va. Davis, according to friends here, was moving from the 300 block of 5th st. se. to Merrifield, Va.

According to Fairfax County police, Humphrey was proceeding west on Route 211 when he ran off the road onto the shoulder and apparently lost control of his car. The car swung into the path of an eastbound Mason & Dixon trailer truck operated by John Frederick Purdy, 27, of Harrisonburg, Va. The car was nearly demolished.

Humphrey was a foreman with the Holland Construction Co. of Tulsa, Okla., installing natural gas lines along the Leesburg pike. His home was in Monroe, La., and he had been residing in Falls Church about three months while employed on the current job. He was single.

A technical charge of reckless driving was placed against Purdy for a hearing Wednesday at 2 p. m. in Trial Justice Court at Fairfax.

Davis, who recently opened a restaurant in a Keyser, W. Va., bus terminal, was returning there from Washington with a load of supplies when the accident occurred.

Police said his car hit a ditch on the right side of a curve, swerved to the left side, went through a guardrail and came to rest in a dry creek bed 15 feet below the road.

Davis' skull was fractured. He was pronounced dead at the scene. He had divided his time between Washington and Keyser since he opened the restaurant and had planned to make a home in Keyser for his wife and two children. Before going into business for himself, he worked as a porter at O'Donnell's Pharmacy, 301 Pennsylvania ave. se.

Boy, 6, Killed In Fire; Five Others Flee

Three Children Leap to Safety From 2d Floor

A 6-year-old boy was killed and three other children leaped to safety from the second floor as fire roared through their two-story brick home, 1234 2d st. sw., at 8:30 a. m. yesterday.

Two other youthful occupants, one carrying a 9-month-old infant, fled the blaze through the front door.

The body of the dead child, Lawrence Williams, was found on the floor between his bed and the front window of the second-floor-front bedroom which he shared with four other youngsters. District Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said death was caused by burns and suffocation.

A sister, Doris, 12, and a half sister, Christine Brown, 15, and another brother, Melvin, 9, struggled to the window through smoke and flame, leaping 20 feet to the ground.

Christine was treated later at Casualty Hospital for injuries to her feet.

Another occupant of the room, Lorraine Brown, 12, clasping 9-month-old Diana Taylor, fled down the stairs to safety.

An older brother of Christine, Raymond, 17, was the first to smell smoke. He gave the alarm and dashed from his first-floor-front bedroom.

Another girl, Thelma Taylor, 19, had left the house about 15 minutes before the blaze started in the kitchen. She returned to find flames making their way through the structure.

Mrs. Rebecca Williams, 45, mother of the Williams children, was visiting friends.

Firemen believe the blaze started in a kitchen oil stove. The fire was brought under control in little more than an hour.

Pastor Warns Americans Against Pride

"It is still God's world, not America's."

With these words the Rev. Orris G. Robinson yesterday cautioned his congregation at the Calvary Methodist Church, 1419 Columbia rd. nw., against the smug feeling that Americans are a class set off by themselves in the world.

Dr. Robinson urged that "we, a highly privileged family in God's world of many families, treat other families with justice, mercy and love as we walk humbly before God."

Man is a vile, evil person when he forgets his humanity to man, he asserted, reminding his listeners "it is not going to be easy for us to walk humbly or to keep the vile people of our own Nation under control, to see that justice and not greed prevails, to love so many ragged, dirty, unattractive people."

The world of human relations in which we are now living was termed "so vile that one is frightened at the depths of man's inhumanity."

Dr. Robinson cited the black market as an evidence of the wickedness into which man can degenerate.

Referring to his recent trip to Europe, Dr. Robinson, however, declared it is also a brave world, and that there is the essence of greatness in every human being. If there was ever a time for us to nourish that essence, he added, and to let it flourish in our individual lives, it is now.

Rev. A. Powell Davies Assails Ban on Atheist Broadcasts

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

The Rev. A. Powell Davies yesterday assailed churchmen who would deny atheists the right to time on the radio.

Speaking at All Souls Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw., he asserted that these churchmen would change the principles of American government if they could.

Dr. Davies referred to a 1946 decision by the Federal Communications Commission in the so-called Scott case. It stated that "freedom of religious belief necessarily carries with it freedom to disbelieve and freedom of speech means freedom to express disbeliefs as well as beliefs . . ."

"Dangerous, Mischievous"

A Congressional Committee, headed by Representative Forest A. Harness (R., Ind.) held hearings on the decision at which a number of clergymen testified early in September. The committee issued a report Saturday asserting that the Scott decision was "dangerous and mischievous," and ordering the FCC to re-write it.

"Unfortunately the hierarchy of some of our churches seem very unsure of themselves," Dr. Davies stated. "They are afraid, apparently, that the atheists might get the better of the argument.

"And this is spite of the fact that some of the clergy are said to be almost blindingly brilliant. I feel like saying to the leaders of these churches: 'Have courage, my friends, since when was an atheist a match for a well-trained Jesuit?'"

Speaking of the portion of the Scott decision which stated that freedom of belief carries with it freedom of disbelief, Dr. Davies said this fact was apparently not obvious to some churches "or, at any rate, to their leaders."

To the extent that they have not assented to this proposition, he stated, "these churches are opposed to the principles of American Government."

"They would change the principles of American Government, and therefore the American way of life, if they could, and this is a fact to be carefully noted, not only by atheists but by believers as well," he said.

The FCC decision stated that freedom of speech is meaningless if the vehicles of public expression are monopolized by some and denied to others, Dr. Davies explained.

"This means, in the case of broadcasting, if we are to be faithful to American principles, that even opinions we abhor must be given proportionate opportunity on the radio. That the FCC is right in this appears to me to be beyond debate," he said.

The Unitarian clergyman asserted that there is no argument the Roman Catholic hierarchy can use against the privileges of atheists that cannot be turned against the privileges of Catholics. An authoritarian church should exercise extreme caution in a democratic society in trying to restrain the privileges of others, lest its own rights be taken from it," he warned.

'More Doubt Than Faith'

No one who believes in God is even frightened by atheists, he asserted. "What a man really believes brings him confidence rather than anxiety. When I see churchmen afraid of atheism, I conclude that they are more full of doubt than of faith," he said.

Dr. Davies stated that the congressional committee has joined these "timid" churchmen in describing the decision as "dangerous and mischievous." He branded their report "irrelevant and silly."

"What are you afraid of, brethren? That your God will fall apart unless you are on hand to hold him together?" he asked.

"Tell me, dear friends, what God is this that you want to put under the protection of the FCC along with election campaigns, soap operas and Charley McCarthy?"

"Suspect Others"

"Your own faith is only a little bit stronger than your doubts, and you suspect the same must be true of other people," he continued.

"We must face atheism and face it squarely, not only on the radio, but in the market place, the street, the church, the home, and in our own minds and hearts. I say in serene confidence that religious faith has nothing to fear whenever it stands and fights, but everything to fear when it runs away," he said.

Margaret Tolson's Recital At Gallery Highly Praised

By Paul Hume

Igor Stravinsky publicly has deplored the fact that the world's renowned keyboard artists neglect the sonatas of Haydn.

Margaret Tolson, in her recital at the National Gallery of Art last night, did much to remedy the situation locally. Her excellent program opened with a sonata in E minor by the great father of piano music. Her interpretation was perfectly in the classic vein.

Continuing with what developed into a brief survey of piano literature, the artist detailed Beethoven's 32 brief variations in C minor. These she invested with lyrical continuity and technical facility. If they droop in the later middle variations, that is more Beethoven's fault than Miss Tolson's.

It is a particular pleasure to hear Margaret Tolson play French piano works. Her sense of style, beautiful gradations of touch, and mastery of the elegance which must never be missing from Gallic writings, is unusual among pianists today.

Three Ravel pieces, two from the early Miroirs, and the menuet from his later Tomb of Couperin, made up the French group. The precise rhythm of the menuet was outlined with the same clarity that later made scintillant the reductive qualities of Oiseaux Tristes, and the familiar Alborada.

Post-intermission attention went to the Americans. Ray Green's Festival Fugues, Ross Lee Finney's fourth sonata, and three pieces of Roy Harris, new to Washington, filled out the evening. It is a pleasure to change our opinion of the Green fugues publicly. Last summer when we heard them in a private recital given for the local chapter of the American Musicological Society, they lacked both coherence and originality.

Roy Harris's three American Ballads are picture paintings in folk songs for the most part, but acceptable. Miss Tolson played her highly commendable program in a manner to match the music.

Civic Groups Due to Fight Denial of Room

Takoma Park Plans To Use Space for Kindergarten

Protests by civic groups are expected tonight at a meeting of the Takoma Park (Md.) City Council following denial by the council of continued use of a meeting room in the Municipal Building.

According to Mayor John C. Post, the council has decided to turn the room into a privately operated kindergarten. It has ordered, effective today, that the room be given up as a meeting place by some 22 civic and service organizations that have been using it.

At tonight's meeting, to be held in the city's firehouse, Carroll and Denwood aves., leaders of some of the groups are expected to protest that denial of the meeting room—one of two in the building—will leave them with no other place to meet.

One organization leader said yesterday that the year's schedules for some groups will have to be changed, since some have been meeting simultaneously in the building.

Most of the 80 children who will attend the projected kindergarten live in the Prince Georges County section of Takoma Park. The board of education of the county does not include kindergarten in its curriculum. The Municipal Building is in Montgomery County.

Mayor Post said yesterday that a telephone poll of the seven councilmen was taken by Councilman Sherwood Githens, jr., chairman of civic improvements, with enough favoring establishment of the kindergarten to go ahead with the project.

Councilman Herman C. Heffner, who is against the project, yesterday branded it as ". . . hardly the proper thing to upset a program built up over eight years for a private kindergarten."

Association Told of Wartime Program; Industry Survey Finds Guests' Wants

By James B. Graham
Post Reporter

Those days will soon be gone when the bellboy leads a guest into his hotel room, turns on the light, raises the shade and presents his open palm even before the guest can say "huh?"

Instead, in the "hotel of the future," the bellboy will also plug in the telephone at any desired point, regulate the humidity of the air, and show only the most delicate interest in the patron's tipping pleasure.

At least these features and many others are planned by hotel men to encourage guests now that the industry has once again returned to a consumer market basis.

The American Hotel Association, convening now in Washington, conducted an exhaustive survey to ascertain what types of accommodations and services the paying public would like to see put into effect. Individual operators asked their guests what they wanted and why—what they didn't like and why.

Back in the prewar days of the late '30's, a hotel had to maintain an average 60 per cent occupancy to break even, Charles A. Horrworth, executive vice president of the hotel group, explained last night.

In the face of rising operating costs, some of which have advanced 300 per cent, as in the case of table linens, a hostelry has to maintain an occupancy average of 85 per cent today or be in the red, he said.

Most often encountered request, the professional hosts found, was for a combination living-bedroom, or studio accommodations. Many travelers wished a room which could be converted from a sleeping room at night and into an office by day.

This single request emphasized that the days of easy money are past and that economical travelers would no longer splurge on an expensive suite.

Leather-lunged bellhops, continually paging "Mr. Joe Doaks" through lobbies and dining rooms, were a special complaint. So the dream hotel will be wired with a public address system which will page guests in a "quiet, pleasant and effective manner."

A six-point program for service in case of a national emergency has been prepared by the hotel industry, Howard F. Dugan, president of the American Association, reported yesterday.

Dugan, of the Hotels Statler Co., Inc., New York, outlined the hotel plans at the opening of the group's four-day convention.

Yesterday's sessions were held at the Statler and Mayflower Hotels.

"This time we will not find ourselves left to shift in a maze of red tape and frustration," he said.

Topping the emergency program is priority service for important wartime travelers, including military personnel in transit, officials on war assignments, executives on war business, servicemen on furlough and the relatives or friends of servicemen.

Other contributions which can be made were listed as use of resort hotels for rest and recuperation centers, provision of permanent housing in crowded areas, supplying of meals to travelers and space for conferences and headquarters, and turning hotels into emergency hospitals.

To make the program work, Dugan said it would be necessary for the Government to establish priorities for transient and permanent housing, say which hotel jobs are considered "essential" and designate the War Activities Committee of the industry as the final civilian authority to determine which hotels are to be taken over and the method and circumstances.

Of a more immediate problem, the association head told the hotelmen that the industry is now "faced with a consumers' market. It's up to us to go out again and sell."

John B. Pope, association consultant on education, urged the hotel men to begin laying the groundwork for a long-term educational program to insure against future personnel shortages in key positions.

The convention continues today with a business session at the Mayflower at 9 a. m., luncheons at the Statler and Shoreham at 12:30 p. m. and a number of clinics at 2 p. m. at the Mayflower and Statler. A buffet dinner will be served at the Shoreham at 6 p. m.

Masked Armed Bandit Here Gets $30 In Holdup of Clerk at Ice Cream Store

A masked bandit robbed a High Ice Cream store clerk last night of $30 at pistol point.

Miss Cora Campbell, 25, of 1625 1st st. ne., a clerk at the High Ice Cream store at 4338½ Sheriff rd. ne., was alone when the man entered the store shortly after 11 p. m., she told police.

"This is a holdup. Give me your money," the clerk quoted the holdup man as saying as he brandished the gun in her face. She handed him the bills in the register and he scooped up the change and fled, she said.

Miss Campbell described the bandit as a medium brown-skinned Negro, about 17 years old, 5 feet 4 inches and 130 pounds. He was wearing green fatigue pants and had an olive drab handkerchief over the lower part of his face, she said.

James on Trial For Baltimore Girl's Slaying

The trial of Eugene H. James, 31-year-old janitor, charged with the shocking murders of two 11-year-old girls, one here and one in Baltimore, begins at 10 a. m. today in Baltimore.

James is accused in the knife slayings of Carol Bardwell in Rock Creek Park on June 27 and Marsha Brill in Baltimore on July 6.

Because Baltimore police apprehended James, he will be tried there first for the Brill murder. If he should be acquitted in Baltimore he would be brought to Washington to be arraigned in the Bardwell case.

It is expected the Baltimore trial will be heard by Judge Herman M. Moser in Criminal Court without a jury. The office of the State's attorney in Baltimore has predicted the trial will be completed in two days.

Trial of 2 Men In Cafe Gunplay Opening Today

Trial of two Washington men charged with shooting each other at the Brass Rail Restaurant, 7th and S sts. nw., last January will open today in District Court.

The defendants, Charles Henry Nelson, 39, of 1803 H st. ne., and Henry M. Leake, 39, of 104 R st. ne., are charged with assault with intent to kill, assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying concealed dangerous weapons.

A possibility of gambling ramifications tied into the case has lifted it from the level of the ordinary assault trial. Both defendants had been quizzed by a special grand jury investigating gambling.

Murray said yesterday that his first witness would be two policemen who arrived on the scene following the gunplay.

You'll save time and energy with an extension telephone. The cost? Only a few pennies per day. Order yours today. Just call our Business Office or mail the handy coupon below.

Why you can get an Extension Telephone while some folks are still waiting for telephone service

No new orders for telephone service are being held up for lack of telephone instruments. It is the need for additional central office equipment, cable and other outside plant that is temporarily holding us back. We'll be able to fill new orders for service as rapidly as those facilities can be enlarged. It's a big job, but we're working harder than ever to complete it. We don't like to keep anyone waiting for telephone service.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Perfect Hellion With Terrible Temper At Home, Man Is Charming to Women and Children Elsewhere; How Explain This?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am concerned for my sister Ella, whose husband Ralph is the problem. I have advised her to divorce him when their children are grown, because he is doing something to her ego, making her unsure of herself, giving her an inferiority complex, and I think she would be better off without him.

Ella is a fine person, talented, good looking, a comfortable homemaker and excellent cook, who has done a fine job with the children and is a wife whom any man should be proud of; and Ralph does seem to be proud of her, but as a man might be of a prize race horse. He is never tender or kind to her.

To those who know her, Ella is a source of fun; but being rather shy, she has a quiet air, and people who get to know her better invariably say, "And I had thought you were so dignified." Ralph is the life-of-the-party type, who dances attendance on the ladies and flirts with any woman who encourages him, leaving Ella to shift for herself.

Man's Front Irks His Sister-in-Law

AT HOME he is a perfect hellion with a terrible temper and hardly ever has a decent word for his children, who are afraid of him. Ella has remonstrated about this, to no avail; yet away from home he plays with other children, who think he is a great "cut-up," and people say "what a wonderful disposition" he has, "so good natured," etc.

It annoys me to hear these compliments on his false front, and at times I am strongly tempted to speak out and expose him; but for Ella's sake I hold my tongue, as she is too proud to let the truth be known. His mother had the same dreadful temper at home; and she, too, was thought "so wonderful" outside.

When Ella has spoken to Ralph about his public neglect of her, he retorts that she is jealous, and if she doesn't like his actions, she knows what she can do. How do you explain such behavior? And what is your advice for Ella? A. D.

Man Is Immature; Wife Is a Clinger

DEAR A. D.: Ella's so-called "patience" is a camouflage of weak dependency, which asserts itself in injured attitudes when grieved; and Ralph is too immature to bear the burden of steady, much less excessive, emotional demands made upon him. And that's the crux of their unhappy relationship, which visits distress on the children also.

In a sense Ralph is correct in saying Ella is jealous of his lady-killer behavior in company; but in essence Ella is more anxious than jealous,—anxiously wanting ego-support from Ralph, that he seems to be showering in all directions save hers, she thinks.

If Ella thought well of herself per se, that is, felt socially competent in her own right, Ralph's boorishness at home and abroad wouldn't break her spirit, although its distasteful quality might cause her to "drop" him emotionally, after a time, in which case he and not she would be the "outcast" in the marital situation.

Man Can't Abide Emotional Demands

INCIDENTALLY, Ralph's habit of dancing attendance on other women, while neglecting his wife in public, is a flagrant advertisement of bad breeding, a shortcoming that usually runs in families, as corroborated by your reference to his mother's example.

The meaning of Ralph's behavior is plain: he is emotionally infantile, self-centered and insatiably hungry for attention himself; thus Ella's and the children's counter-demands for devoted consideration irk him almost unbearably. And because he feels guilty about failing them miserably, he tries to "sell" himself outside the home—using a different label, of course—as if to make the point that home brings out the worst in him; and indeed it does, for reasons I've just explained.

For advice: After the children are gone, the burdens that Ralph resents will be lightened, home will seem more a haven to him, remorse for his sins of omission will drive him unconsciously to look to Ella for solacing closeness and forgiveness (if she has the wisdom to understand and respond); and in that day, Ella will need his companionship more than ever, on a "sure thing" basis, regardless of flaws in the arrangement. So if Ella herself can become more mature and stick along, that's the Rx for saving the marriage. M. H.

About Recipes for Beans

When I was a girl, we used to have "New York State" baked beans, at home. Since I have been married, we have been having real "New England" baked beans, baked all day in a beanpot. They are very delicious, but lately, I have been "hankerin'" for the beans of my childhood. I have no idea how they are made, except that they are baked in a pan, instead of a pot. I am wondering whether or not some of your readers can give me a recipe. M. H. H.

Does any Ask Anne reader have a recipe for "New York State" baked beans?

I wonder if you could help me find an agent or store in Washington or suburbs that sells English baby carriages? I am an English girl and I would like to purchase one. I know that England does export baby carriages out here, but where. L. S.

There is a firm on 18th st. nw. which carries a type of baby carriage made after the British style, but manufactured in America. The American firm uses British patents so that they can be exactly patterned after English carriages. Because of the high duty, British-made carriages would have to sell for about twice as much as those of the same type made in this country. For further information about the American made British-type carriage, or the British carriage, call Hudson 8289.

To J. B. and E. D., both of whom have inquired about the cleaning of oil paintings:

I have discussed the cleaning of oil paintings with L. Sigsbee Gilham, artist restorer with 28 years experience in cleaning and restoring oil paintings, and he has this to say:

"Since the paints used in oil paintings are not standard, it is difficult to recommend a method which will be successful for amateur use. Using mild soap and water on pictures is not recommended because the water soaks through the tiny pores to the back of the picture, causing, in time, cracks and blisters. Use of water on oils can also cause them to mildew and develop blue mold because it is virtually impossible to remove completely all moisture from the picture once it is applied.

When an oil painting has been damaged from water and has developed cracks and blisters, the repair job is a difficult, time consuming one, Mr. Gilman points out. To make such a repair, he uses a hypodermic needle filled with a special adhesive. He inserts the needle from the back of the canvas, places a small drop of adhesive between the canvas and the loosened layer of paint. When enough adhesive has been inserted in this way, he rubber-rolls the blistered area flat to the canvas and places pressure on it until the adhesive grasps it.

"Alcohol should not be used as a dirt solvent," Mr. Gilman says, "because it has been known to dissolve some materials with which paints are mixed, completely destroying the picture."

When asked about the use of linseed oil, he admitted that the oil will brighten some pictures, but that the use of any oil on pictures will in time leave a dark coating which completely destroys the brilliance of the colors.

"Some of the methods used by a professional, if put into the hands of an amateur would ruin a picture," continued Mr. Gilham. To explain the statement, he added that professionals know the exact second at which certain solvents must be neutralized to avoid damaging the paint. Because of lack of experience, an amateur would not recognize that moment and the solvent would be allowed to attack the paint itself.

So exact is the science of restoring oil paintings that experts mix all of the materials which they use themselves. Their adhesive is mixed by using virgin bees wax or wax which comes from combs which have contained honey but no brood. Virgin wax is thought to be better for adhesives, Mr. Gilman says, because in hatching a brood of bees, the wax loses some of its elasticity. An other ingredient of adhesive is gum mastic, which is the tears from a pistachio tree. Still another is oil which has been sun thickened for four to six months.

In view of all the above, it would seem the best suggestion I could make would to be turn the cleaning of your paintings over to a professional.

Could you tell me if there is anyone here in the city who makes hand-crocheted rag rugs or braided rag rugs? R. B.

The following is a letter from an Ask Anne reader written in reply to an earlier request about crocheted and braided rugs. It seems to answer your question, R. B. as well as L. L. G.'s.

This is an answer to L. L. G.'s letter about braided rugs. This is my hobby and I have made many braided and crochet rugs. If L. L. G. will contact me by calling Adams 1862, I will be glad to tell her how to prepare the rugs and make the rugs, too. I will also show her mine. They wear well and last for years. Also, they are readily cleaned at home. M. D.

Argentine Minister Promoted; Leaving Soon for New Post

By Marie McNair

IT WAS the French who coined the phrase, "To part is to die a little."

But it so rightly expresses the sentiments of the Argentine Minister and Senora de Drago, soon to leave for Poland after 11 years in the United States.

True, it's a promotion for Martin Luis Drago, who'll be Chief of the Argentine Diplomatic Mission in Warsaw, but Senor Drago who looks like every debutante's dream of a Prince Charming is somewhat sad.

His friends are scattered from San Francisco to New York where he held Consulate posts in both cities and in Washington, his home for the last two years.

He's been saying his farewells here at a series of small dinners, and cocktail parties, given by some of his colleagues who wish to speed him happily on his way.

Senora de Drago, who has that Parisian flair for chic, will leave with her husband for New York on the twenty-eighth, will sail with him on the Queen Elizabeth October 8. They'll go to Poland by way of France with a stopover in Switzerland.

THERE'S a personality scarf to be designed by Charles Latshaw for some lucky gal who is the first to sell six season tickets to new subscribers for the Wednesday, or Sunday concert series of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Mr. Latshaw will study you, decide what colors you should wear, what designs would best fit your personality, and forthwith will come a handsome silk neckpiece. He's done that for Crown Princess Martha of Norway, Margaret Truman and dozens of others.

In addition to the scarf the winner gets a season ticket for herself for the symphony. And so do all of those who make the sales quota of a half dozen ticket strips.

At the opening luncheon of the ticket campaign committee on Thursday at the Mayflower, Agi Jambor, Hungarian pianist who now lives in this country, will give the guests a treat. She's promised to play. Mrs. Theodore Dominick, chairman of the ticket sales campaign, will wield the gavel.

TOWN TOPICS:

The Indian General, Maharaj Shri Rajendrasinhji, who is page one copy these days for leading his armies into Hyderabad, is the same courtly officer who used to wind colorful turbans for his lady friends in Washington.

On October 2, the same day that Carolie Woods, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Woods, and great granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, says "I do" with Lieut. Valentine Hollingsworth, jr., in Christ Church, Georgetown, a wedding of equal interest will be taking place in Newport, R. I. Mary Lee Fahnestock, daughter of the Snowden Fahnestocks, has chosen that day to become the bride of John Ward Leggett of New York, in Trinity Church, and a reception at Ker Arvor, summer home of her parents, will follow the ceremony.

Friends of Mrs. Frank Morrow, whose husband, Colonel Morrow, is ill in Walter Reed Hospital, have been doing their best to console her since she received word last week of the death of her only son, Henry Culley, in an accident on the grounds of his estate at Santa Barbara, Calif. Colonel and Mrs. Morrow had but recently returned from a summer visit to Mr. Culley and his family.

Col. Carlo Unia, Air Attache of the Italian Embassy, has leased Mr. and Mrs. Houston Harper's house on Woodley rd. for the next two years and will take possession early in October. Signor Unia, who is still in Italy, is expected in November. The Harpers will go, as usual, to their place in Florida for the winter.

The last I heard of blonde and beautiful Mrs. Peter Ansberry, she was nursing severe bruises and a broken bone or two received in a fall from a jeep at Rehoboth Beach.

Gen. Omar Bradley, Chief of Staff, and Mrs. Bradley, have issued invitations for a reception next Sunday afternoon at their quarters at Fort Myer.

Curtain Time Tips For Housewives

Fall time is curtain time and think well before making your selection. Net curtains give an enlarging effect to the small room. Don't be governed too much by a passing fashion when curtaining your room; decide what is prettiest a most suitable in style and material and stick to it. Elaborate, ornate curtains in a modest little home are most out of place and dainty sheer nets would be so much more suitable.

'Body Management' Held Secret of Lovely Figure

So says the Fashion Editor of a leading West Coast newspaper regarding the Tarr System.

"Body Management" is the secret of a lovely figure, no matter what your age may be. This means proper habits of walking, standing and sitting.

If those have been good, you have a trim symmetrical figure as well as healthy body because all the glands are able to function properly. If they have been poor, you have a poor figure and perhaps impaired health to show for years of improper carriage.

Llorna Jordan of the stage, screen and radio keeps trim at the Tarr System's Hollywood studio.

It may seem incredible to you that by merely correcting your habits of standing, walking and sitting you can completely remould your figure. You can slenderize your hips and reduce the size of your abdomen almost immediately by merely holding yourself a certain way. You must try it for yourself, and you will find that you feel more vital than ever before.

Of course, every woman's problem is different, and for this reason we cannot give you a blanket treatment to cure-all-ills, but we can recommend a fine reducing salon that will prescribe for your individual problem.

The first step is to make an appointment to have a complete figure analysis. This is absolutely free and entails no obligation on your part. A course will be recommended for your specific problems and may entail either active or passive methods of exercise according to your choice.

This System will help you to achieve beautiful body alignment and your improvement will be permanent so long as you keep your body management perfect.

Company Fare

For a company dish, fry chicken and make a cream gravy, then add oysters to the gravy and serve with hot biscuits.

To prepare stuffed celery for a party, mash cream cheese with blue cheese, thin with a little cream, flavor with finely grated onion and tabasco sauce. Wash the celery, trim off the leaves, cut stalks in 2-inch lengths and stuff with the cheese mixture. Sprinkle with a little paprika and arrange attractively on a serving plate.

A delicious addition to a packaged fudge mix are walnuts and chopped dates. Chop the walnuts and dates that go into the fudge and then decorate each square with a slice of date or half a walnut immediately after pouring and marking.

Garnish a potato omelet with crisp bacon bits and serve for Sunday breakfast with muffins and currant jelly.

Mix luncheon meat that has been diced with diced celery for a hearty Sunday night supper salad. Moisten with creamy salad dressing and flavor with onion salt and Worcestershire sauce.

Vegetable Lore

When potatoes are "waxy" it means they probably contain a larger proportion of protein to starch than they do when they are "mealy." Waxy potatoes are good for salad and scalloped dishes and for creaming, since they retain their shape well.

Do not shell fresh peas until you are ready to cook them. Cook them rapidly in just enough boiling water to keep them from burning for as short a time as possible. A pound of shelled young peas will often cook in less than 10 minutes.

Peas are a good addition to a number of other vegetables. Here are some of the possible combinations: with carrots, with cauliflower, with new potatoes, with corn.

When selecting spinach, buy leaves that are free from sand and dirt and have a fresh, green color.

A good combination for a vegetable dinner: snap beans, baked stuffed potatoes with mushrooms, buttered beets and perhaps spinach.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Modern Driver Needs a Ouija Board

A local motorist paid a $5 fine the other day for failing to understand a traffic cop's signal.

If that's the going rate for such misunderstandings, I must owe the District Government about $10,000.

Just picture the typical scene. We come upon an intersection at perhaps 20 miles per hour. We have been following a truck (there's always a truck ahead), so up to the last split second we have seen nothing but the hind-end of that motorized behemoth.

Suddenly there comes into view an officer. His left hand is up, palm outward, to indicate that he wants somebody to stop. His right hand is describing wide, sweeping arcs, to indicate that he wants somebody else to hurry up and get through the intersection.

And his whistle is shrilling madly, as he directs a reproving glance at a jaywalker, who has thoughtlessly stepped out into the stream of traffic.

If the cop were looking our way, as he waved, we'd figure that he meant for us to go. If he were looking the other way, we'd figure that he meant for us to stop.

But when he's looking at the jaywalker, we're up against a tough one-second decision.

Which shall we hit—the accelerator or the brake?

For a wrong guess, the penalty is $5. For a correct guess, the reward is permission to go on to the next policeman—who'll give us the same test over again.

It's not the cop's fault; he does the best he can with our over-sized traffic load. But it does seem a little rough on the poor driver, who just doesn't happen to be a mind-reader.

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. Margaret Wilker, 911 C st. ne.: It's "another one of those words." Webster says that you can spell it with either one "l" or two.

Leona Spilman, 1015 Otis pl. nw., and R. W. Dyar, Glenn Dale Sanatorium: Sorry, but I have no unpublished information about the D. A. V. puzzle.

Maybe Everett Lane of Comorn, Va., can help you. He's founder of the National Contesters Association, which was started here in the District 11 years ago, and has won quite a few prizes in his time—including a new auto.

There's a man who might even be able to Stop the Music—if the Federal Communications Commission doesn't beat him to it.

GIVE AWAYS

"Chunky, spunky terrier. Our doghouse is overcrowded." (Woodley 9138).

MISCELLANY

Mrs. Irving M. Grey, wife of Poet Pop Grey, sends a swell letter from Turin, Iowa, thanking us for helping her "keep an eye" on Pop through the District Line while she's away. Mrs. Gray was sick in bed when her Washington Post arrived with Pop's latest verse, and bless me if she didn't perk right up . . . Constance Steel of 1743 P st. nw. says maybe we'd have fewer assault cases in Washington if folks would be more prompt in reporting broken street lights. Hoodlums love those dark spots—and I would not be surprised if they were responsible for most of the busted lights . . . Harry Traub of 2743 N. Lorcom lane, Arlington, Va., bought himself a musical saw because he thought it would be a cinch to learn to play it. Now he discovers that it's a tough job, and none of the music studios he's contacted are equipped to help. Says Harry: "Either your readers will have to come to my rescue or I might as well start using this fine musical instrument to saw wood."

YOO HOO, MR. KENEIPP

D. A. Thompson of 4319 Overlook ave. sw. tells me that policemen in La Grande (Ore.) no longer hand out tickets for overtime parking.

Instead, they put a nickel in the meter for you, and leave a "courtesy envelope" under your windshield wiper. The erring motorist is supposed to use the envelope to return the nickel.

So far, the La Grande police have gotten back more money than they've fed into the meters.

CAUSE & EFFECT

There once was a lady of weight
Who got herself wedged in a gate
When they got out the tractor
And tried to extract her
She mused: "Probably something I ate."

Ell Jay

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—In Sardi's some actors were discussing the ban on absinthe and one of them asked, "I wonder what it's like?" Louis Calhern, who became a teetotaler years ago, said "I'll tell you what absinthe's like," and told of the days before the First World War when he toured in vaudeville and had a month's lay-off in New Orleans and went on a drinking spree. He invited his new, questionable friends to accompany him to his next engagement in Texas. They arrived at the theater at 6 a. m., and Calhern told the manager he was ready to rehearse for the show that day. "Rehearse, if you want to," said the manager, "but this is San Antonio. You're booked to appear today in Houston" . . . "And that," Calhern told the curious actors, "is what absinthe's like."

John Steinbeck is living in the 3-room playhouse in Pacific Grove, which his father built for him when Steinbeck was 2 years old . . . Dick Brown, the singer on the "Stop the Music" program, was asked how he feels about knowing the name of the Mystery Tune and not being able to do anything about it. Brown studied the prize-list, now almost $25,000, and sighed: "I feel like someone who works in the mint."

Evita Peron, wife of the President of Argentina, was a film actress before her marriage. Her last movie was finished shortly before the wedding. The producer of the movie examined the final print, and decided that the picture must be a flop. He therefore placed the film in a colorful box, and presented it to Evita as a wedding present, with a diplomatic note explaining that inasmuch as she now was becoming the First Lady he preferred not to capitalize on her new status . . . Mrs. Peron released the movie herself, and from it made the first $250,000 of her fortune.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Favors U. S. Boosts, Dewey Hints

By Drew Pearson

Governor Dewey has dropped the hint to one or two Republican Senators that he would like to engineer some boosts in government salary after he comes to Washington next January.

Bridges

Talking to Senator Style Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee, Dewey said he wanted to bring Paul Lockwood, his astute confidential adviser, and several others of the brain trust to help him in the White House.

"But," added the Governor, "they can't afford it on present Government salaries."

Therefore he asked Bridges to put through some legislation increasing Government pay scales.

"Well, if it's for Earl Warren, or any of the men around you," replied the New Hampshire Senator, who has a New England conscience when it comes to money, "I'm sure we can do it.

"But, if you're talking about bureaucrats personally," he continued, "Hell, no! I'm dead opposed to it. We've got to show that we're not going to load up the Government with expensive bureaucrats. Futhermore, I know that John Taber will feel the same way. A few key executives may deserve increases, but otherwise absolutely no."

Dewey let the matter drop. However, the conversation indicates that the new Republican President—if elected—isn't going to have altogether plain sailing with his Congress.

Note—Congress is sure to vote the Vice President a salary increase and give a house—probably the colonial mansion once owned by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson. Governor Warren was promised this before he accepted the vice presidential nomination.

Hoffman's Nepotism

Michigan's stocky, garrulous Congressman Clare Hoffman considers himself a great protector of the public purse. However, he isn't so belligerent on that score when it comes to putting his own relatives on the public payroll.

Hoffman is the only member of Congress with no pockets in his pants. He gets his clothes made to order with no pockets, but doesn't seem to mind letting salary money get into the pockets of his relatives.

His son, Carl E. Hoffman, is paid $6000 a year as counsel for the Expenditures Committee.

A granddaughter, Sarah Ann Hoffman, gets $3200, the top salary of the Congressman's staff.

Incidentally, both have been spending a good part of their time at Hoffman's Allegan, Mich., headquarters, assisting in his reelection campaign.

Little State; Big Feud

Out-of-state Republicans are so anxious to steal Rhode Island away from the Democrates this year that they have stepped right into the middle of a local scrap and split the GOP worse than ever.

Today's primary battle on the surface is over the GOP nomination for U. S. Senator. Actually, it goes deep into the roots of race and religious feeling and has aroused bitterness which may take years to heal.

The state GOP machine has been backing Thomas Pierpont Hazard for the Republican nomination against Republicans Walter Sundlun and Louis Jackvony, the first Jewish, the second Italian.

GOP state bosses are convinced that only a hard-headed Yankee can beat Democratic Senator Theodore Green in the showdown race, and national GOP leaders made the mistake of jumping in on the side of the machine. To this end, Winthrop Aldrich, head of the Chase National Bank, and former Connecticut Senator John Danaher, director of Republican Senatorial campaigns, tried to slip into Providence and raise money for bluestocking Hazard, against the Jewish and Italian candidates.

A hush-hush meeting was arranged at the swanky Hope Club by Richmond Viall, manager of Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Co. News of the meeting leaked and, caught in the glare of the public spotlight, Aldrich and Danaher hit the ceiling. Carefully screening everyone at the door, they finally went ahead with their meeting, but despite the secrecy here is what happened:

Don't Yield Dollars

Viall tried to squeeze $50,000 from wealthy Republicans present, but only got pledges for $9200.

Meanwhile, the Republican machine has brought in outside help to raise money and handle publicity for its indorsed candidates—Ketchum, Inc., of New York City, a professional soliciting agency. Its commission is 4 per cent of the take. Mrs. Eleanor Johnson of upstate Massachusetts, a professional organizer, was also hired at $125 per week, and Jack O'Keefe, a New York press agent, was put on the payroll in Rhode Island at $150 per week.

Note—Others who attended the secret Hope Club meeting included Henry Sharpe, board president of Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Co.; Robert Dresser, former executive vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers; Steven Wilson, president of Framm Corp.; Malcolm Chase, jr., local banker whose father is a director of the Chase National Bank; Bayard Ewing, wealthy attorney; Henry Fletcher, former Chairman of the Republican National Committee; H. Livingston Kelly jr., treasurer for the Hazard campaign committee; and Thomas Casey Greene, Republican State chairman.

★ No. 24 IN A SERIES DEDICATED TO THE NATION'S CAPITAL, Washington ... ITS INSTITUTIONS AND ITS PEOPLE ★

THIS WEEK THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE

United States Supreme Court

and its people who staff the administrative offices of the highest Court in the Land

● THE SUPREME COURT . . . the judicial arm of our Federal Government . . . is the Guardian of the Constitution, the cornerstone of our democratic system. Each term, lasting from October to June, the Court hands down an average of one hundred fifty to one hundred seventy-five rulings on constitutional matters.

● THE SUPREME COURT . . . in its dignified, white marble building, faces the Capitol across a wide plaza. Of Greek style architecture, the Supreme Court Building is rich with sculptured symbolism depicting the origin and development of codified law. Completed in 1935, the home of the Supreme Court is in keeping with the importance and dignity of the highest court in the land, one of the three equal and coordinate branches of the United States Government.

● THE SUPREME COURT . . . is the "office" for two hundred thirty-four employees . . . including the nine Justices. One hundred five workers are employed by the Administrative Office of the Federal Court System . . . coordinating the work of the entire federal judiciary throughout the nation.

● THE SUPREME COURT . . . has had many homes during its long and distinguished history . . . the old Exchange Building in New York City, where its first sessions were held . . . Philadelphia's Old City Hall and State House . . . a simple frame building at 204 Pennsylvania Avenue S.E. . . . and since 1935, its new and magnificent Hall of Justice.

Over the Supreme Court Building's stately entrance pillars are the sculptured words: "Equal Justice Under Law." These four words go far to sum up the political philosophy upon which our great democracy is based . . . a philosophy nurtured and developed over centuries . . . at untold sacrifice in terms of human blood and lives. The people who work in the Court's marble Hall of Justice cannot help but feel the impact of that philosophy . . . as they serve under the present members of the Supreme Court, who are carrying on the tradition of such men as John Jay . . . Roger Taney . . . John Marshall . . . Oliver Wendell Holmes . . . and the other distinguished jurists who have occupied the bench of the highest court in the land for more than a century and a half. The Supreme Court . . . as the judicial branch of our Federal Government . . . is charged with the essential function of acting as the final checkmate in maintaining the separation of powers as provided for in the Constitution . . . and, thus, the freedom of the individual citizen. Liberty for the individual is the very breath of Democracy . . . and the keystone of our way of life. The Hecht Company respectfully dedicates this tribute to the men and women whose work for the Supreme Court is so important in nurturing and developing our democratic heritage . . . guiding light of Free Men everywhere.

All material contained herein has been secured from the United States Supreme Court and the United States Library of Congress.
